CITY FINANCE BILL PASSED BY SENATE, READY FOR SIGNING

City Leaders Studying Ordinances Needed To Put New Measure in Effect With as Little Time Loss as Possible.

HARTSFIELD ASKS FOR WISE ECONOMY

Atlanta Revenue Will Be Increased to Point Where Municipality May Solve Problems.

Eventual relief from Atlanta's perennial fiscal problems was seen yesterday in passage of the omnibus bill by the Georgia state senate.

Governor Rivers is expected to affix his signature to the measure within the next day or two and city leaders yesterday already had begun a preliminary study of municipal problems with a view of making provisions of the law effective as soon as practicable.

Under the omnibus measure, city revenue will be increased about $1,400,000 for two years, when it will drop about $300,000, due to limiting provisions.

Major provisions of the bill are:

1. Fixation of the city water rate within certain limitations by the city for a period of five years, thus eliminating the charter restrictions for that period.
2. Adjustment of the city sanitary tax law to enable the municipality to collect what the service costs. A tax of $3 per unit served is now in force but H. J. Cates, superintendent, asserts it costs the municipality $0.07 for each service last year.
3. Removal of the $300 maximum charge for city business licenses.
4. Increase of the ad valorem tax rate two mills for two years and one mill for the ensuing three years.

Schools To Benefit.

City schools will benefit to the tune of 30 per cent in all increases in revenue, under provisions of the bill, thus the amount available for immediate city use will be cut by that figure.

Mayor Hartsfield last night was elated at the passage of the measure, asserting "it means the salvation of the city."

He added that, in order to pay the city out of debt and place it on a cash basis, strict economy must be practiced in administration, and that "every dime must be applied to this end."

Must Pass Ordinances.

All those provisions must be made operative through passage of city ordinances making them effective. We have a lot of studying yet to do before we can make any intelligent recommendations. The water rate must be considered carefully. We must make the increase to pay the city out of debt as painless as possible. Then, too, there is the sanitary tax. Constitutional amendments permitting the city to refund relief bonds which we now have outstanding from the present 10-year life of the bond to 30 years, will reduce the immediate drain on the treasury for these bonds. They, however, must be met over the 30-year period. We also will be per-

Rescued Crew Fails To Brag of Horrors

NORFOLK, Va., March 19.—(AP)—Captain R. H. MacLean and the seven-man crew of the British Avon Queen, who were taken off the sinking schooner Tuesday by the destroyer Fairfax 30 miles off San Salvador, today and astounded dockside observers because:

They didn't seem to remember anything particularly harrowing about four days on a sinking ship.

None of them said he expected each moment to be his last.

They told no tales of a howling wind, a raging sea and the four-master tossed about like a cork.

Instead, Captain MacLean, of the nonchalant shipwreck survivor crew, said:

"We left the Texas Island the 12th with a cargo of salt bound for St. John's. The next day we ran into a heavy sea. About noon the mate reported we were taking water fast. Our four mechanical pumps were started but the water came in faster than it went out. We sank lower and lower as we moved over into the shipping lanes and then along came the Fairfax and took us off. That's all there is to it."

President's Son Flays Critics of Court Plan

Constitution Staff Photo—Mr. James Roosevelt (standing), son of the President and his administrative assistant, last night sounded a ringing challenge to Democracy to support his father's proposal for judicial reorganization. He is shown as he rose to address the Tenth District Victory dinner in Athens. He was introduced by Judge Blanton Fortson, of Athens, seated at left.

IRISH RACE SENDS 4 MILLION TO U. S. AWARDS PROGRAM

North Carolina Woman, Wife of City Fireman, Holds $150,000 Ticket.

NEW YORK, March 19.—American ticket holders in the Irish sweepstakes won $4,327,317 on the Grand National steelpiece, at Aintree today.

Among the winners was Mrs. Ira W. Shields, of Durham, N. C., who held a ticket for $150,000 on Royal Mail, a 100-to-6 shot.

At Washington treasury officials estimated Uncle Sam's "take" of American winnings in the English race will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Royal Mail victory netted Americans $120,000. They gained $325,000 on Coolen, second place winner, and $500,000 on Pucka Belle, who ran third. Americans already had won $2,102,517 on drawings preliminary to the race.

Holders of "Royal Mail" tickets were awarded $150,000 each in addition to the $3,070 they won automatically when the tickets were drawn.

Other major American winners follow:

- Royal Mail—Joseph Bosco and Percy Wells, New Britain, Conn.; Happy Easter, N. B. Elizabeth, N. J.; K. Johnson, Nelly Hills, Mass.; Little Fish, Williamsville, Perry.

JAMES ROOSEVELT CHALLENGES FOES OF COURT REFORM

F.D.R. Given Mandate To Repair National 'Watch' Before It Is Too Late, He Asserts in Athens.

Text of Roosevelt's Address Will Be Found in Page 4

By RALPH MCGILL.

ATHENS, Ga., March 19.—James Roosevelt stood before nearly a thousand cheering Democrats of Georgia tonight at the Athens victory dinner and carried to them the fight to reorganize the federal judiciary.

He charged the judiciary "has been able to take advantage of circumstances to set itself aloof and apart from the will of the people."

Tall and slim and very solemn, he defended the President's and his father's plan, saying the court had failed to remain within its sphere of action and had thus failed to co-operate in a democratic form of government.

He had heard Governor Rivers, the chief executive of Georgia, say to him that Georgia was behind the program of the President, his father, exactly 100 per cent. And then Governor Rivers had paused to await the dying of applause, and then had said, raising his voice, "and that goes for the revamping of the supreme court. The senate of Georgia has approved it 100 per cent, and in counties where referendums have been held, the vote has been six and eight and ten to one in favor of the President's plan."

Fortson Is Speaker.

He had heard Judge Blanton Fortson, son, judge of the county's superior court, say that if the supreme court adhered to its present interpretation of the constitution, it would be impossible for the states and the nation to enact legislation which would prevent another and greater social and economic catastrophe.

The President's son arose to speak with confidence. The setting was a beautiful one, which only Georgia could have provided.

Across the front of the speakers' table were bowls of pink and white peach blossoms. Behind them flickered white candles in white candlesticks, and back of the table rose tall

DR. GREEN FINED AND THEN FREED

Court Has No Choice, Says Judge in Passing Sentence; Legislature Acts.

Dr. Samuel Green walked from a superior court room a free man yesterday afternoon a few minutes after a bill was introduced in the house of representatives which, if passed, will make relations between doctors and their patients privileged. The physician was fined $25.

However, introduction of the bill had no bearing on the release of the doctor, who was being held on contempt charges following his second refusal in as many days to answer a question put to him by an attorney during trial of a damage case.

Ordered back into court and again put on the witness stand at 1 o'clock yesterday, Dr. Green referred to his training, who was being held on contempt charges following his second refusal in as many days to answer a question put to him by an attorney during trial of a damage case.

Sit-Down Strikers Fined $3 and Costs

GROTON, Conn., March 19.—(AP)—One hundred and twelve men of a group that conducted a brief sit-down strike at the plant of the Electric Boat Company were convicted of trespassing today by Judge Nathan Belcher in town court. He fined each defendant $3.

The 112 employees stayed in the shipyard at the conclusion of the day shift's work on February 23. Early on the morning of February 24 they were ejected by state and Groton police.

After court the defendants were faced with a choice of appealing, and filing a $60 bond, or paying their fines. At least 30 had paid up at once.

In addition to the fines, Judge Belcher assessed costs of eight cents per man.

House Body Advises Sanitarium Refusal

A special committee of the house of representatives recommended last night that the offer of the city of Atlanta to transfer title of the Battle Hill sanitarium to the state be declined.

The committee found that the institution would, in its opinion, be unsuitable for use as a state institution. Objection to location of the sanitarium was one of the features prompting the committee's report.

The resolution, which was not acted upon at the night session, expressed appreciation of city officials for having offered the institution to the state for its use.

MURPHY CONFERS TO END SIT-DOWN IN DETROIT PLANTS

Arrest of 6,000 Strikers Occupying Eight Factories of Chrysler Corporation Is Ordered.

DETROIT, March 19.—(AP)—Governor Frank Murphy brought together executives of the Chrysler Corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America tonight a few hours after the arrest of 6,000 sit-down strikers occupying the company's eight automotive plants had been ordered.

The Governor had been in conference throughout the day seeking peaceful evacuation of the strikers from their plants. After talking with union leaders in the afternoon he met with Chrysler executives tonight.

A while after K. T. Keller, president of the corporation, and R. E. Hutchinson, finance chairman, entered the Governor's hotel suite Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., and Richard T. Frankenstein, its organizational director, joined them.

Just before the night conference began Governor Murphy said the Chrysler labor dispute "is moving along rapidly and satisfactorily."

In New York Secretary of Labor Perkins said there might be a "break" in the situation at any moment. She said she might confer with Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the corporation's board, or John L. Lewis, strike generalissimo, before leaving for Washington.

INDIANAPOLIS PRINTERS TO RETURN TO WORK

INDIANAPOLIS, March 19.—(AP)—Union printers voted here tonight to return to work on the three Indianapolis newspapers, ending a 24-hour strike which left this city without a local paper. The vote on returning to work was 207 to 18.

5 AND 10 REPRESENTATIVES INVITED TO CONFERENCE

Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization said its immediate aim was to build, in an "orderly" manner, a permanent collective bargaining agency for the industry's 1,250,000 workers.

Amelia Planning To Take Off For Tiny Island Early Today

'Potential Disaster' Found Flier Times Departure To Arrive at 'Speck' During Daylight.

HONOLULU, March 19.—(AP)—Engineers found "a potential disaster" threat in Amelia Earhart's $80,000 flying laboratory today but failed to deter her in preparing for one of the most dangerous phases of her projected aerial dash around the world.

To assure a daytime landing at unlighted Howland island, Miss Earhart decided late today to begin her hop about 1 a. m. tomorrow (5:30 a. m. Atlanta time) if the weather is favorable.

Wilbur Thomas, motor expert, said an examination disclosed the propeller bearings were almost dry when she landed in Honolulu yesterday at the finish of a record flight from Oakland.

He asserted the condition might have forced Miss Earhart down at sea had she taken off yesterday, as originally planned on the lap to tiny Howland island, 1,532 miles to the southwest, never before covered by an airplane.

Improper Oil Blamed

The expert, who came here especially to check the plane's motors, said improper lubricants at Oakland, starting point of the world flight, caused the dangerous situation.

Although she landed at Wheeler field, 35 miles from here, on the record-smashing flight of 15 hours, 51 1/2 minutes from the California mainland, Miss Earhart elected to use Luke field, the army airport, for the Howland takeoff. There she had the advantage of a concrete runway.

Howland, because of its almost microscopic size, offered a challenge to Miss Earhart and her navigators, Harry G. Lindbergh and Fred Noonan, but they had the assistance of two naval vessels.

Island Is Small.

Howland is a sandbar scarcely two miles long and half a mile wide. It stands out three or four feet above sea level at high tide.

Despite its physical insignificance, Howland assumed a place of importance a few months ago when the government began developing a landing field on it, as a possible stepping stone in an air route to the Antipodes.

Hartsfield Seeks World Premiere Of 'Gone With the Wind' in Atlanta

Atlanta, locale of the major portion of the story of "Gone With the Wind," may witness the premiere showing of the motion picture as a feature of the city's centennial celebration.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday urged David O. Selznick, president of Selznick International Pictures, Inc.; George Cukor, who will direct the filming, and the entire cast of players to visit Atlanta in a world premiere of the picture made from the famous book, written by Margaret Mitchell, of Atlanta.

Miss Mitchell last night was enthusiastic about the proposal, asserting "it would be wonderful if it could be done." She added, it would be "a fine thing for the centennial and I believe it would be good publicity for the picture."

"We could show the picture at the auditorium, which will be finished by the time the filming is completed," Hartsfield said. "People from all over the country would come here to the premiere showing of the book they have all read and loved. This is the locale for the book."

"I would be happy to see the first showing here," Miss Mitchell added. "It would be a fine thing for us."

Chemistry Professor Says Gas From Improperly Vented Individual Heaters Collected in Walls and Spark Did the Rest.

OIL WELL FUMES CITED BY OTHERS

Contractor and Electrician for Big Texas Building Will Be Grilled at National Guard Probe

NEW LONDON, Texas, March 19. (AP)—An expert's "positive opinion" that the blast which killed some 425 school children and teachers in the London Consolidated school may have been generated in the very walls of their classroom spurred investigation tonight of the nation's worst school disaster.

Dr. E. P. Schoch, University of Texas chemistry professor who is rated as an expert on gas explosions, said "it (the explosion) came from either the basement or the hollow tile walls which are excellent gas chambers."

"I am reasonably certain in which one of these sections it occurred and have very little evidence to support an explosion in the other."

He inspected the tangled wreckage from which a thousand men hauled the bodies of the trapped victims and asserted he found many of the gas radiators without proper flues.

One Satisfactory Vent.

Of six radiators left intact after the explosion, Dr. Schoch said he found only one with a satisfactory vent.

"It's simple," he said. "The walls were filled with gas that had no other exit. Then there was a spark, and the walls burst."

"The condition of the bodies of these children bears that out. They were blown (he emphasized the word) to death—not burned to death."

School Superintendent W. C. Shaw, who lost a son in the tragedy, said he believed seeping gas from the adjacent oil fields caused the blast.

"Hot Oil Theory."

Most theories as to the cause of the explosion traced back of the oil operations on which the communities served by the school depend. Al Dechman, of San Antonio, former investigator for the Texas Railroad Commission, oil regulating body, suggested "hot oil" runners might be responsible.

Dechman explained in regular operations the gas which comes up with the oil is burned in flares. Such flares, however, show the well in operation and permit production of oil above their allowable permits. Sometimes operate without the flares, permitting the gas to escape.

Dechman's theory was that gas thus freed collected in the basement and ignited.

Wary workmen who toiled through the night and day, burrowing in the wreckage for bodies, completed the task late today, after 425 victims had been removed, with the statement of Colonel E. E. Parker, commander of national guard forces which held the territory under martial law:

425 Bodies Recovered.

"The job is finished. We estimate 425 bodies were lifted from the ruins. Maybe more."

The shell of the school building lay silent, its steel, bricks and tile scattered over a vast area.

Occasional muffled sobs of anguished parents, most of them shut in their homes by their grief, broke the funeral quiet.

Around the scene of the blast itself, where last night men strained in tremendous labor, and machines clanked through the grim task of uncovering bodies, the only activity was an occasional visit by authorities or residents seeking to ascertain the cause of the appalling destruction.

Captain Combes, of the national guard, who accompanied Dr. Schoch on his inspection trip said he had

36-Hour Rain Slated With Spring's Arrival

Atlantans may say "spring is here" after 6:45 o'clock tonight, according to the weather bureau, for that is the time set by charts, maps and gauges as the official beginning of the vernal equinox this year.

But Atlantans also would do well to arm themselves with umbrellas and raincoats, the bureau warns, because all indications point to 36 hours more of fairly steady rain—or spring showers, if you prefer.

The temperature this morning is expected to be about 52 degrees, 4 degrees higher than yesterday's low of 48 degrees. The mercury reached a high reading of 72 degrees yesterday afternoon and about the same maximum is expected today.

STATE ROAD PATROL MEASURE IS SIGNED BY GOVERNOR RIVERS

Department Setup Will Be Delayed Until Assembly Adjournment.

Governor Rivers yesterday signed the bill creating a state department of public safety which includes the setting up of a highway patrol and provides for drivers' licenses.

Representative C. E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, the house floor leader, who sponsored the bill in the general assembly as well as the house and senate conference committees who worked out details of the measure after it passed both houses were among the large group who witnessed the signing. Governor Rivers used a pen furnished by Jere A. Wells, Fulton county superintendent of schools. Superintendent Wells said he would keep the pen as a souvenir. Governor Rivers said he did not plan to launch the setting up of the department until after the general assembly adjourns. He added that Judge Sutton "will be one of the factors setting up the patrol."

He said Georgia would call on the Federal Department of Justice, police patrols in other states and army officers to assist in training the men who will compose the patrol.

"When we start, it will be on the most efficient and courteous basis," Rivers said.

Jule C. Sipple, sheriff of the city court of Savannah, represented the Georgia County and Peace Officers' Association at the ceremony. He is chairman of that organization's legislative committee.

Sipple said the executive committee of the association would act soon to select a list of 10 nominees from which the Governor would name one of the members of the public safety commission provided for in the bill.

"It is one of the happiest occasions of my life," Sipple said.

"This has been a hobby of mine since Dick Russell was Governor, and has been something I've been working for for years."

In addition to Sutton, the legislative joint conference committee that perfected the bill was present. They are Senators Atkinson, of Savannah; Lindsey, of Atlanta; and Pope, of Cairo, and Representatives Sutton, Cochran, of Thomas county, and Trappnell, of Chandler.

Others present included Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Kathleen Mitchell, of Atlanta, safety committee chairman of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

George F. Singer, of Columbus, president of the Chattahoochee Valley Motor Club; Joe S. Sherr, of Atlanta, past district governor of Kiwanis; W. D. Hoffman, of Atlanta, representing the Rotary Clubs; and W. D. Trippie, of Cedartown, representing the Exchange Clubs.

The Atlanta term of the United States customs court lasted exactly one day here yesterday, with approximately a dozen cases being presented to Judge William T. Tilson, former Atlantian, who presided over the court which provide for terms in various cities.

One case heard yesterday involved eight chairs, claimed to be genuine Chippendale, imported by a local decorating house. The government claimed $130 in duty, plus penalties. The decorating firm claimed the chairs are genuine antiques, made more than 100 years ago and therefore exempt from duty requirements.

Another case involved Japanese manufactured portable phonographs, in which the government claimed 10 percent penalty because the machines were not marked in a conspicuous place with the country of origin as required by law.

Decisions in both cases were withheld for submission of briefs.

Two Atlantians, United States Assistant District Attorney I. K. Hay and Ben H. Berry, were admitted to practice before the customs court.

TIPSY DRIVER SENTENCED.
NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(P)—A woman listed as Mrs. Alton G. Morris, 25, formerly of Woodville and Hattiesburg, Miss., was sentenced today to pay a $50 fine and serve 60 days in parish prison here for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Final rites for Charles Lewis Seaver, 17-year-old Tech High school student, who was killed Thursday night when the car in which he was riding crashed on the Buford-Lawrenceville highway, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Brandon-Bond-Condage, with the Rev. W. A. Shelton officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Seaver's home was at 817 Ponce de Leon avenue, where he lived with his mother, Mrs. Evelyn Keye. At the time of the crash he was riding with Ernest Andrews, of a Blue Ridge avenue address, and Jimmy Clark, 16, of 785 Ponce de Leon place. Andrews, who was asleep on the back seat, reported he woke to find the car rolling over and over. He said he had no idea what caused the car to overturn. All three youths were thrown clear of the vehicle.

Clark was admitted to Grady hospital with a fractured skull. He was reported still in serious condition last night. Clark was said to have been driving at the time of the accident. Andrews suffered only slight injuries and did not require hospital treatment.

ORATORY URGED TO HELP POLICE

Kansas City Organizes Class in Public Speaking for Officers.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 18.—(UP)—The perfect policeman of the future will be an accomplished public speaker, able and willing to harangue an audience on any subject, if Captain Hugh M. Dougherty, of Kansas City's finest, has anything to do about it.

The trouble with most of the city's police force is that they stammer and splutter and become embarrassed when called upon to deliver an impromptu lecture to a refractory motorist, Dougherty believes.

To remedy this, Dougherty has organized classes in public speaking and oratory for policemen and he is confident much of the ill feeling between the public and the police department will disappear speedily.

Other advantages to the training, Dougherty believes, are that officers will be able to write more intelligible reports and will become more adept in questioning suspects held for investigation.

SEC TO INVESTIGATE HUTTON & COMPANY

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(P)—The Securities and Exchange Commission instructed its counsel today to investigate the origin of W. B. Hutton & Company's connection in 1935 with market operations in stock of the Artform Corporation.

It was a surprise move instigated by Jacob Gruber, commission attorney prosecuting charges that the New York brokerage house manipulated Atlanta Tech Corporation stock.

Edward C. Johnson, trial examiner, adjourned the Hutton hearing until March 20, over the protests of Defense Counsel David W. Peck, to permit Gruber to photograph for the record some 3,000 customers' orders in Artform.

TOBACCO TAX MEASURE IS PASSED BY SENATE

Cigars and Cigaretts Alone Affected; Measure Expected To Net $1,000,000

The senate swiftly passed the house-approved cigar and cigarette tax bill, 32 to 1, yesterday after leaders placed it on final reading in a surprise move.

President Spivey had previously announced house measures would not be considered until Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—the final days of the session—but seized upon a full senate business to act upon the measure which is calculated to bring in $1,000,000 additional in state revenue.

Several senate amendments will necessitate it going back to the house for concurrence.

In response to a plea by Governor Rivers in his tax message Monday the senate struck provisions of the bill taxing smoking tobacco, chewing tobacco and snuff.

License Fees Added.

The senate also tacked on a $25 license fee for wholesale tobacco dealers and a $1 license fee for retailers.

Another senate amendment would make the bill effective April 1 instead of upon approval by the Governor.

House rates on cigars and cigarettes were not changed. The rate on popular brand cigarettes would be increased from 1-2 cents a package of 20 to 3 cents. Cigar rates would be lowered slightly on most varieties.

Completing the tobacco tax bill, the senate turned immediately to the unemployment insurance tax which it passed, 34 to 0. Clarifying amendments will necessitate the bill going back to the house before reaching the Governor.

The measure is designed to recoup for the state up to 90 per cent of the unemployment insurance tax on pay rolls now being paid to the federal government. The measure, proponents said, would levy "no burden on Georgia taxpayers. It provides for unemployment insurance payments to begin two years after it takes effect in accordance with federal regulations."

1937 Tax Higher.

The tax for the last half of 1937 would be higher than for 1936 in order to enable the state to receive the full benefit of the federal taxes which have been levied since January 1, observers said there was no way for Georgia to get back any of the unemployment taxes said the federal government for 1936.

The appropriations bill would increase to more than $40,000,000 the normal state expenditures of $30,000,000.

Representative Campbell, of Newton county, charged on the floor it provided a 20 to 40 per cent increase "for" department under this capitol dome.

Governor Rivers said his plans were to lump approximately $10,000,000 of $14,000,000 of new revenue needed into the general fund which would be increased to $20,000,000 a year under the bill. New money for free text books and rural roads would come from special allocated funds.

Patrol Act Signed.

The Sutton highway patrol act creating an 80 to 120-man uniformed constabulary and providing for drivers' licenses in the state by July 1 was signed into law by the Governor early yesterday.

The senate passed without a dissenting vote a measure to permit the state to take over Station WEST in Atlanta which Governor Rivers said he plans to increase from 6,000 to 50,000 watts capacity.

Would Name Commission.

The measure, which was sent to the house, would create a seven-member radio commission for the state composed of the Governor, the president of the senate, the speaker of the house, the president of Georgia Tech and three lay members to be appointed by the Governor.

The station is now under lease to Clarence Calhoun, of Atlanta. The bill would declare all leases as not binding unless approved previously by the legislature. The Calhoun lease was not, officials said.

"The interests of Clarence Calhoun, lessee of the station, and of Georgia Tech, cannot outweigh the interests of the people of Georgia," Rivers said. Senator Millican, of Atlanta, amended the bill before passage by providing that the identity of Georgia Tech, to whom the station was given by the late Clark Howell, editor and president of The Atlanta Constitution, should be maintained in its operation. Revenue would also go to the school rather than to the state treasury.

Millican also amended the bill to give the radio commission power to prevent losses to Calhoun.

Under the bill it would be mandatory upon the commission to provide time on the station for crime information, advertising the state, education and health.

The measure now goes to the house. The senate and house held a joint session at noon to listen to a talk by Governor George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania, who was the guest of Governor Rivers.

The Pennsylvania executive praised President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan and said it has "shown us" and once the "reactionary judicial barrier" has been removed it would be easy to "open" the highway to social security, economic justice and industrial recovery.

A bill to amend the constitution so that new manufacturers of Georgia-grown farm products would be exempted for a period of five years from date of establishment from municipal and county taxes, after approval by vote of the people of the city or county involved, was passed and immediately transmitted to the house. The constitution at present exempts certain industries, but the list does not include those manufacturing farm products.

The state inspector of shellfish would be transferred from the Department of Agriculture to the Department of Health under a bill passed 36 to 0.

A bill to require satisfactory evidence of ownership of an automobile before issuance of a license tag was passed 31 to 0.

The state law on speeds of vehicles was amended by a bill providing for a maximum speed limit of 60 miles per hour for passenger cars and 40 miles per hour for trucks. Other provisions of the present act were retained. An effort to amend the bill to make the maximum speed of passenger cars 50 miles an hour was lost overwhelmingly. The bill was sent to the house immediately.

A bill to amend the present law as to suspension of the compact for the general house measure, was adopted 33 to 0.

A house bill to appropriate $12,500 to the state veterinarian to be used in fighting records of "Bare" disease, commonly known as contagious abortion, in cattle, was passed 43 to 0.

Night Session.

The house representatives voted assistance to the livestock industry of Georgia last night by passing an appropriation of $50,000 annually for the next two years.

$38,470 ADDED FUND SOUGHT TO OPERATE PENITENTIARY HERE

More Guards Needed at Prison, Sanford Bates Tells Committee.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Department of Justice appropriation bill, reported to the house today, recommends $932,610 for the Atlanta federal penitentiary during the next fiscal year, which is $38,470 greater than for the current fiscal year and a decrease of $9,300 under the 1938 budget estimate.

The appropriations committee, of which Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, of Georgia, is a high-ranking majority member, gave $39,425,000 for the needs of the whole department and the judiciary. This amount, if approved by congress, will result in a reduction of $838,689 under the budget estimates and a reduction of $1,931,125 under the appropriations for the current fiscal year, so that the Atlanta penal institution didn't fare so badly after all.

Representative Tarver is next ranking member to Chairman McMillan, of South Carolina, on the subcommittee which framed the justice appropriation bill. He played a conspicuous part in drafting the recommendations.

More Guards Needed.
The major share of the increase ($47,770), was requested by Sanford Bates, former director of the federal bureau of prisons, who testified at the hearings on the bill that 15 new guards or junior officers, of whom five were required by the new leave laws, at $1,860, totaled $27,900; one assistant parole officer at $2,000, and one clerk in the parole office at $1,620, were badly needed. This made a total personnel increase of $31,520.

The population of the prison estimated for 1938 is 3,000, whereas the last appropriation was allowed on the basis of only 2,555. That accounted for the increase in the maintenance and operation on the basis of population of $62,963, whereas there is a decrease in the per capita due to the fact that we are estimating 50 cents for 1938 as against 55 cents for 1937. There is an offset decrease of $47,713, or a total net increase of maintenance and operation of $15,250, which makes a total estimated increase of $47,770.

He testified that cost per prisoner per day at the penitentiary had averaged this year, so far, 48.6 cents, and an estimate for the next year was placed at 50 cents. This estimate corresponds closely to those made for other federal prisons such as Leavenworth and the federal jail at New Orleans.

Director Bates further testified that if the committee would grant his request for an increase this year in parole officers, senior warden assistants and parole clerks, he would not be coming back for additional increases because a standardized educational set-up was being perfected for Atlanta as well as other penal institutions.

Budget Estimates.
Budget estimates for offices of warden's assistants and parole officer at Atlanta are $2,600 for one senior warden's assistant; $2,000 for two junior warden's assistants; $1,860 for one clerk and $1,620 for a second clerk.

The estimate for one parole officer is $2,300 and $1,800 for one clerk. Discussing prison guards, Director Bates said if there was ever an institution where the government was short of guards, that institution was the Atlanta penitentiary.

In answer to a question put to him by Representative Tarver, Mr. Bates declared that he needed additional guards at Atlanta in order that extra periods of service would not be required of the present guard force.

"We need 10 more guards at Atlanta to bring the force up to its proper level, and we need more in order to give 28 days annual leave instead of 15," he asserted.

In explaining the deficiency of $89,300 in the appropriation for this year, the director explained that the sole reason for that was an increase in the population.

"We were allowed an appropriation for 1937 on the basis of 2,555 men, and average from July 1 to December 31 has been at the rate of 2,934 men," he concluded.

Mr. Bates resigned as director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons on February 1, last, to become an executive of the Boys Club of America, Incorporated. He was highly thought of in prison reform circles.

DALLAS, Ga., March 19.—Three white prisoners this afternoon escaped from the Paulding county chain gang barracks near here and tonight were in flight, with bloodhounds believed close on their trail to the northeast, toward Acworth.

The trio, feigning illness, had been left in the barracks when the other prisoners were taken out to work. It later was discovered they burned a portion of the window frame, shook loose a bar, and made their escape through the aperture.

The prisoners were listed as J. D. Isham and Griffin Pettijohn, each of whom had served about one year of a three-to-five-year term for burglary, and W. C. Johnson, who had served about two years of a six-to-20-year term for the same offense.

JUDICIAL REFORM PLAN IS UPHOLD IN SEMINOLE

Georgia County Votes 632 to 17 in Support of President Roosevelt.

DONALSONVILLE, Ga., March 19.—(UP)—Seminole, the first county to hold a presidential preference primary for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936, gave his federal court reorganization plan a favorable vote today.

Complete official returns from the rural southwest Georgia county, the third in as many days to ballot on the question, gave 632 votes for President Roosevelt's proposal to 17 against it. Joe Johnson Jr., of the Democratic executive committee here, said the vote for the court plan was stronger proportionately than that cast in favor of Mr. Roosevelt when Seminole voters registered a preference for him for President over former Governor Talmadge of Georgia.

The movement for a county vote on the court plan originated in Seminole some weeks ago, but previously planned special elections for county offices enables near-by Mitchell and Randolph counties to vote first.

Randolph Wednesday voted 1,062 to 17 in favor of the President's court plan. Yesterday Mitchell voted, giving 1,714 as compared with 255 against on the face of unofficial incomplete returns.

ROOSEVELT PAYS VISIT TO CASON CALLAWAY

President Ready for Talk With McNutt at Warm Springs Today.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., March 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt took the second swim of his vacation in the warm waters of a private pool here today, ate a quick lunch and drove 25 miles to LaGrange for a dinner at the Blue Springs Lodge of Cason J. Callaway, cotton textile manufacturer.

Callaway's 10,000-acre cotton farm and a group of negro spiritual singers were sidehights for presidential observation and entertainment before and after the feast.

The LaGrange mill operator is a trustee of the Warm Springs Foundation that the President developed for treatment of infantile paralysis victims.

He recently returned from a private mission to the Orient, where he was said to have negotiated a gentlemen's agreement with Japan regarding importation of cheap textiles into this country.

The President started the second week of his Pine mountain vacation by reading latest reports from the school disaster at New London, Texas, and seeing that all federal assistance possible was being provided.

White House officials refused to say whether the President listened in tonight to the President's speech at Athens, Ga., by his son, James, White House administrative assistant. He had an opportunity to do so at LaGrange.

His calling list tomorrow is the largest since he arrived March 12. He will see Paul V. McNutt, recently appointed high commissioner of the Philippines; Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama; a group from the University of Georgia to induct him as an honorary member into their historic Phi Kappa society; and Ed Barry, the writer, who has been making a farm tenant study for the President.

Marvin H. McIntyre, presidential secretary, said he did not know what McNutt would discuss. A proposal by Manuel L. Quezon, Philippine president, to advance the date for full independence from the United States is now before government officials. McNutt is expected to leave next month for his Manila post.

Graves, the secretary said, was merely paying a courtesy call. "Friend of the Universe." By his initiation into the University Literary Society, the President will become a "friend of the universe," a liberal translation of the Greek "Philo Kosmos" full name of the society.

He also will join a distinguished group which at intervals over more than a century have become members of the society. It includes Presidents Andrew Jackson, James Buchanan, James K. Polk and John Tyler; Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, and Napoleon Bonaparte.

The group presenting the membership will include Morris Abrams, president of the society; Howard Perry, Sol Singer, Wingate Dykes, Albert Menard and Lee Price, undergraduate members, and T. W. Reed, university registrar.

The pylons were erected with WPA aid at a cost of approximately $5,000. Mrs. Nelson Seeveringhaus, president of the Women's Club, made the presentation speech, and Mayor E. J. Newmeyer responded and dedicated the markers to President Roosevelt.

8 HELD, $40,000 SEIZED IN N.Y. NARCOTIC RAIDS

NEW YORK, March 19.—(UP)—Federal agents today claimed to have broken up "the most efficient" narcotic manufacturing and distributing organization in the United States by four raids in the lower East Side of Manhattan in which eight Chinese were arrested.

The prisoners were held in ball ranging from $3,000 to $5,000 each on charges of possessing narcotics. The agents said they had seized approximately 56 pounds of "pink heroin pills," the most modern and efficient equipment for making the pills ever confiscated in this country, and a small quantity of opium. The seizures were valued at $40,000.

COTTON IMPROVEMENT URGED BY WESTBROOK

One-Variety Movement Proving Effective, He Tells Memphis Parley.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 19.—(UP)—F. C. Westbrook, cotton specialist from the University of Georgia, told a meeting of farmers, bankers, merchants and brokers today the south must grow a better quality of cotton to retain its markets and improve its land.

He was the principal speaker at the conference, called by the Memphis Cotton Exchange, to start a movement for producing longer staple, better quality cotton in this section.

He said that in Georgia, the development of one-variety communities had been effective. In these communities the farmer agrees to plant the better quality cotton. The profits, he said, justified the co-operation with the better staple program, launched after it was found "our own Georgia mills were compelled to import half the cotton they used."

Filibuster Threat Speeds Jury Action

WASHINGTON, Ga., March 19.—(UP)—Deadlocked juries promised to prolong the adjourned February term of Wilkes superior court here this week until a threatened filibuster—with the Augusta Chronicle as the weapon of offense—sent the jurymen into successful huddles.

The threat of a filibuster came when jury after jury found themselves stalemated, a problem which was solved only when one of the jurors arose with an issue of the Chronicle in hand and declared he would ask the secretary to read the morning paper from cover to cover if a verdict was not reached before the court adjourned for the day.

A verdict was reached.

BACONTON MAN KILLED IN FALL UNDER WAGON

BACONTON, Ga., March 19.—(UP)—F. D. Cobb, 74, of Bacocton, was fatally injured here yesterday when he fell under a wagon. According to reports, he was standing beside the vehicle when the horses started, and as he reached for the lines he fell under the wheels, receiving chest injuries which resulted in his death three hours later.

HABEAS CORPUS WRITS FLOOD U.S. COURT HERE, TYSINGER DECLARES

Jones Amendment To Dry Law Is Cause, Attorney Tells Legal Fraternity.

The present flood of habeas corpus writs in the United States district court in Atlanta is the result of the famous Jones five and ten amendment to the national prohibition act, passed in 1929, United States Assistant District Attorney H. H. Tysinger told members of the Sigma Delta Kappa law fraternity at their monthly meeting last night.

Tysinger pointed out that most of the habeas corpus law interpretations in the United States have been made in this district and circuit. This has arisen from the fact that the Atlanta penitentiary is the only one in the United States located in a city where the federal court has headquarters. Another factor has been the large number of prohibition violators incarcerated here, with the resultant enlarged field for habeas corpus actions, particularly in relation to the Jones amendment.

Tysinger told members of the fraternity that the Jones amendment was found to be too strict, and that later the Stobbs amendment was passed, creating certain exceptions in the Jones law, and providing among other things that where not more than one gallon of whiskey was involved, the crime was reduced to a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for not more than six months.

This act, he said, was not publicized and district attorneys continued to use indictment forms in which the amount was not specified. In the first case contested on a habeas corpus writ, it was held that the punishment where the indictment did not specify any amount could be only the lowest degree, carrying the six-month maximum.

"Now the prisoners knew nothing of the law," he said, "but they knew that men with sentences up to five years whose offenses involved large quantities of whiskey were being released on habeas corpus after serving only six months. This was something good; it was even better than parole. Something resembling the California gold rush occurred. Sad to relate, the flood of writs brought into prominence the truth of the old adage that 'to err is human.' Many other grounds for habeas corpus were discovered and developed. Many sentences fell by the wayside, and even departmental rulings and regulations were not exempt. A great variety of decisions resulted involving all kinds of federal law. A steady stream of writs has continued since."

Counsel for All Indigent Prisoners.

One change in procedure arising from a writ decided in this district is that involving right of appointment of counsel for indigent defendants, Tysinger said. Prior to the decision, counsel was never appointed in any but capital cases. Following the decision, the attorney general ordered a procedure change guaranteeing that all indigent prisoners are given counsel, Tysinger declared.

A case now pending before the court involves the fugitive felon act, and the decision is expected to have wide ramifications.

Tysinger, who handles all habeas corpus cases under direction of District Attorney Lawrence Camp, told fraternity members that he has in this district definitely settled the rather inchoate state of the law pertaining to indictments which are attacked by habeas corpus.

The assistant district attorney in his talk outlined the history of the habeas corpus writ from the days of ancient Rome through the English period of development into the present status of the writ in the United States. He pointed out that the only mention of the writ in the United States constitution is a provision that "the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus will not be suspended, except when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it." The privilege of the writ was too definitely implied in the idea of a free form of government to need any formal assertion or confirmation, Tysinger said.

Week-Long Coma Mystifies Woman

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Love, emerged from her mysterious coma, was recovering satisfactorily in the jail hospital today, doctors reported. She lapsed into a subconscious sleep a week ago, after hearing herself convicted by a jury of the slaying of Harry Love, prosperous broker, who she claimed was secretly her husband.

Dr. Benjamin Blank, county jail physician, declared after an examination: "Mrs. Love is sane. I see no reason to change my original findings. She has not yet gained control of her legs, but she will."

"I don't understand all this," Mrs. Love said today. "When I woke up today and saw the tile on the wall, I asked myself, 'Why did I sleep in my bathroom?' I thought I was in the bathroom at home."

"I'd like to go to court right now and beg for a new trial."

SANTEE-COOPER COST ESTIMATE CRITICIZED

Jersey Engineer Forecasts $53,000,000 as Against PWA's $37,500,000.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 19.—(AP)—Testimony that the cost of constructing the proposed Santee-Cooper hydroelectric plant would exceed $53,000,000 was injected today into hearings on the case by three power companies which seek to restrain the PWA from financing the project.

Application to the PWA put the cost at $37,500,000.

In hearings before Federal Judge Glenn, Alexander C. Clogher, consulting engineer of Englewood, N. J., testified not only would the cost exceed expectations, due to substantial changes essential to its operation, but advanced costs would cause it to operate at an annual loss of $22,000.

Clogher estimated the life of the plant at 50 years. He further testified his estimate of the maximum annual output of the plant was smaller than that given in the application.

A deposition by Dr. Warren G. Meade, head of the geology department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, set forth construction of the project was "perfectly feasible and safe if proper modern engineering methods are followed."

The Federal Power Commission entered the case by the admission of Willard Gatchell, Washington, as friend of the court.

DISCRIMINATION HIT BY U. S. CHAMBER

Chamber Says Merchants Should Be Free of Unjust Laws.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Retail merchants should be free from unjust and discriminatory laws, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today.

Its directors approved a committee report criticizing "discriminatory" proposals.

The report said many proposals in congress and state legislatures would place restrictive regulations or special taxes on the retailers.

Co-ordination of flood control activities by federal, state and local governments was recommended in another committee report. It suggested federal efforts be directed primarily to large streams affecting many states, with the states taking "primary responsibility" for other projects.

Boy's Heart Broken Over Dog's Ownership

ORANGE, N. J., March 19.—(AP)—Clifford Airey, 15, said today he "wont sleep" until a judge decides whether a mongrel wire-haired terrier belongs in his home or should go to another claimant.

The boy burst into tears yesterday as the judge reserved decision, unable to decide the ownership after two men who claim the dog both had it do tricks in court.

Responding to the lad's father as "Rex" and answering to "Spotty" when John Byrne called, the wire-haired animal leaped joyfully into the arms of Clifford at his signal.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 20, 1937.

THE TEXAS TRAGEDY

A pall of sorrow lies today over all America. From every state, every city, town, village and rural home, the heart of the people beats slowly in sympathy with those distraught souls at New London, Texas, who weep over the still bodies of their children.

The tragedy in that great school, wiping out in a moment of unutterable horror hundreds of glowing young lives, has stunned the nation.
All aid that America can give is flowing fast to the stricken town.
The Red Cross and all the other agencies of humanity have rushed to help the stricken. Everything that can humanely be done is being done and will be done. Of that there can be no doubt.

Today, though, there pours a great flood of silent comfort from every section of the country. From President Roosevelt at Warm Springs to the humblest citizen of the land, [written or unspoken words of understanding go to the bereaved.

Reasons for such a tragedy are hard to comprehend. It comes, without warning, and those held most dear are taken in a flash. The mother and father hearts of an entire community one moment beat in prideful joy and highest earthly hope; the next they lie prostrate in the dust of unutterable human woe.

We send what we can of matterial aid, of human succor and of help. But it is all so small, beside the stupor-bringing horror of the scene.

Out of this shocking tragedy must come new precautions in every state of the Union to safeguard the lives of the school children of America. All such tragedies are preventable.

Whatever the cause of this one,
it should be discovered for the future safety of every school child in America.

THE MEANING OF "CHEMURGIC"

The word "chemurgic" means chemistry as applied to the products of the farm. That form of science which is ever seeking new uses for the principal crops and for the by-products of the agriculturist.

Chemurgic as applied to the south, according to men who know, means new wealth, new prosperity and a new social order almost millennial in its implications.

Dr. Carl B. Fritzsche, managing director of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, recently stated that, from four products alone, it is possible for the 12 southern states, in the next 10 years, to add $1,500,- 000,000 to their annual earning power and to employ 3,000,000 additional workers.

The four products to which he referred are the paper industry, the manufacture of starch from sweet potatoes, the tung oil industry and the manufacture of denatured ethyl alcohol.

These four are only the beginning. Almost daily new uses are being found for the gifts a bountiful nature sends to man. Witness the successful use of cotton as a base for highways. The making of glycerine, industrial alcohol and casing from rice. And scores of other discoveries.

One thing, with this possibility of new wealth dazzling southern eyes turned to the future, the south must, however, remember. To succeed, industry must consider more than the source of its raw material and its ability to change that material into the finished goods.

Those goods must be marketed and they must be taken to market.
They must be sold in competition with like goods from other sections, from other nations.

The southern manufacturer, no matter what advantages he enjoys in the matters of supply, of climate and of working conditions, is hopelessly handicapped unless he can get his goods to market at no greater transportation cost than his competitor, unless he can sell those goods on equal footing in the market places of the world.

When Emerson said that the world will beat a path, even though it be in the wilderness, to the door of the man who makes a better mousetrap, he may have been telling the truth for his own day.

Today the man who makes that better mousetrap must also make it as easy for the world to buy his goods as it is to buy mousetraps made by his competitors. Otherwise the world will never discover its superiority.

BETTER FOR BOTH

The agreement between President Manuel Quezon, of the Philippine commonwealth, and government officials at Washington to advance the date for complete Philippine independence from 1946 to either 1938 or '39 clears the way for congressional action to that end.

The ten-year transitory period authorized under the existing agreement under which the Filipinos would receive independence step by step between now and 1946 is fraught with danger to the United States, to the peace of the Far East, and to the new government of the Philippines.

From the standpoint of this country, the agreement means continued responsibility for the national and economic welfare of the Philippines. In the case of either internal or external trouble the United States is obligated to enter whatever situation might arise.

Since the installation of the Quezon government, there have been dissatisfied elements among the Filipino people. Should serious insurrection flare and the Quezon government fall, it would be necessary for the United States to maintain peace and order until a new and stable government had been established.

Should the Philippines become threatened from the outside as a result of the tense situation existing in the Far East, with either Japan, Russia or China casting envious eyes at the islands, the United States is pledged to come to their defense until the ten-year transitory period is completed.

This period was granted largely to enable the Filipinos to firmly establish an independent government, and to reconstruct their economic structure so that disaster would not follow when they lost their favored position as an exporter to the United States. The chief products of the Philippines have come to America in the past without the necessity of paying the tariffs which exporters of the same commodities in other nations have to pay.

Thus the Philippine sugar producers have had an advantage over the producers of Cuba and other countries which made it possible for them to pay the heavier costs of transportation and still be able to compete successfully in the American market.

Evidently the Filipinos feel that they do not need as long a time for their economic readjustment as was considered necessary when the independence was entered into. Since they feel that this is so, and in the Quezon administration they have what is undoubtedly a stable and strongly supported government, it is far better that the transitory period be shortened as is now suggested.

Since we are to get out of the Philippines, the sooner we do so the better it will be. Congress will be well, therefore, to act promptly in putting into effect the agreement which will be submitted by which complete independence will be granted to the Philippines by next year or the year after.

HONOR TO EMORY STUDENTS

The National Institute of Public Affairs of Washington has invited the Emory University division of public affairs to send two students to attend its institute of government during the week of March 29 to April 3. Conferences are to be held with high public officials in Washington, including members of the supreme court. Only 80 to 90 students are being invited.

The division of public affairs has named Jack Tolbert, president of the Political Science Club, and William B. Smith, a graduate student in economics, to serve as representatives of the university.

Emory and its student delegates are to be congratulated. Much good can be derived from these meetings. It is an unusual opportunity to come in contact with outstanding public men of the nation, and to forward the interest of education in the south through the association of talented southern students with other bright young men from other states.

The debunkers are merging their stories. It appears that the hatchet Carrie Nation didn't wield on saloon mirrors is the one George Washington didn't employ on the cherry tree.

A scandal over the exorbitant profits made by munitions interests is breaking in Tokyo. It seems impossible to make just a little money in munitions.

What figures has anybody got on the total production in 1936 of haywire, in world diplomacy?

World's Window

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Ethiopian Massacres.

NEW YORK—According to the meager news dispatches trickling out of Ethiopia, the new Italian oversight is proceeding in a most ruthless manner in the "pacification" of the old empire. Taking as a pretext an attempt on the life of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, the Blackshirt police the other day went on a wild rampage in the city of Addis Ababa burning the huts of the natives and shooting down any and every individual whom they encountered. The London Times speaks of thousands and thousands of bodies lying in the streets following the sudden outbreak of Fascist fury. Men and women and children who had not the remotest connection with the plot to kill Graziani and who did not even know that an attempt had been made upon his life, were suddenly and brutally killed.

For one thing, the Eccles tocin rang a little too loud and clear.
Commodity speculators viewed it as they did the Hoover speeches in the old days of the previous administration, and went off in a direction opposite to that which Eccles pointed. The bond market did likewise, to an extent which will make Mr. Morgenthau's rest sporadic or worse for some time.

OVER-EMPHASIS

For another thing, the Lewis to King to Robinson play in the senate seemed to some critical observers to be a little too good. It smacked of a Tinker to Evers to Chance. Floor Leader Robinson seemed to overrun the bag by complaining so swiftly of the helplessness of the federal government to meet the sit-down strike situation without a ruling from the supreme court on the Wagner case.

However, in fire-building or in baseball, a certain amount of over-playing is to be expected. In general, the boys seem to be fairly well satisfied with the blaze of interest they have started with price-spirals and dictatorships, although content not to carry it too much further right now.

DANGER

While Federal Reserve Chairman Eccles is being given public credit for being the best calamity success, the thing was really started by SEC Chairman Landis in his Georgia speech. After Eccles came Agriculture Secretary Wallace, then Commerce Secretary
Roper, then Assistant Labor Secretary McGrady, then Senators Lewis,
King and Robinson.

These speeches and statements all advertise the severity of some phase of the price-spiral inflation and most blame it on foreign armaments and munitions. (Sit-down strikes) and industry (steel price increase) in this country, which is true. The common motif of all also is that the federal government is helpless, which may or may not be true. Apparently the purpose is to cause the nation to hand Mr. Roosevelt the supreme court bucket, or at least more power to put out the flames.

There is a danger, however, in this type of subtle campaigning. The grave danger is that the President may be handed a couple of buckets more easily than the court; for example, a public clamor for a disarmament conference, the enforcement of anti-trust laws, enforcement of laws protecting private property, lowering of tariffs, and other remedies which his friends do not desire to use.

INVITATION

"The time has come when our honorable President would be justified, upon any action taken by this honorable body (the senate), in suggesting that he behold the strike situation as of concern to the republic, not from the standpoint of the constitution or the line of demarcation between the federal government and the states—those abstract doctrines which have often times wooed us to confusion."

The invitation was issued to the chief executive not by a Fascist, but by a United States senator, J. H. Lewis, on March 17 (record, page 3003), who denounced Fascism and feared dictatorship would develop unless the President is given more power.

3-PLAN

The purposes of Mr. John Lewis are announced more comprehensively than elsewhere in a cartoon appearing on the cover of his United Mine Workers' Journal for March 15. It shows "steel, autos, electricals and glass" already in his collective bargaining agenda, while he is appealing to "radios, aluminum, rubber, textiles, oil and cement" to "come forward, brothers, now is the time."

NAIVETE

The Postmaster-and-Democratic General Farley was in a spot. He had a beautiful speech built up, all about how men become decrepit when they have passed 70 years of age. But he was to deliver it in North Carolina, near the home of Congressman Robert Doughton.

Now, Mr. Doughton has reached the age where he no longer mentions it in his biographical sketch in the congressional directory. As a matter of fact, he is 74, and smart enough to hold one of the four most important Democratic posts in congress, the chairmanship of the ways and finance legislation. Some of his friends believe his political career has just started and that he may run for the senate next year.

This situation might have the makings of a predicament for some, but not for General Farley. He worked in only one extra sentence, "Your own distinguished Bob Doughton will never grow old."

DENMAN

A note was published in this spot some time back stating that Circuit Judge William Denman, of San Francisco, had died. But an indirect way.

A year ago he submitted privately to Chairman Sumners, of the house judiciary committee, a plan for appointing about 50 new judges in the lower federal courts and creating a procedure to act as liaison officer between the supreme court and lower courts.

These two ideas were incorporated in the President's plan.
But Judge Denman did not advocate, and is not now advocating, any changes with respect to the supreme court.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The official smoking-up of the national state of alarm is progressing a little too well for the comfort of those who are doing it. Certain of the fire-fanners are now slipping away from the blaze they have started and are emulating President Roosevelt by taking a spring vacation. (Messrs. Eccles, Bell, Roper, Morgenthau and many others have left town or are leaving.) It may be too much to say some of them have been overcome by the millions of their own, or by other, words, but certainly they are not now relaxing in complete comfort.

For one thing, the Eccles tocin rang a little too loud and clear.
Commodity speculators viewed it as they did the Hoover speeches in the old days of the previous administration, and went off in a direction opposite to that which Eccles pointed. The bond market did likewise, to an extent which will make Mr. Morgenthau's rest sporadic or worse for some time.

OVER-EMPHASIS

For another thing, the Lewis to King to Robinson play in the senate seemed to some critical observers to be a little too good. It smacked of a Tinker to Evers to Chance. Floor Leader Robinson seemed to overrun the bag by complaining so swiftly of the helplessness of the federal government to meet the sit-down strike situation without a ruling from the supreme court on the Wagner case.

However, in fire-building or in baseball, a certain amount of over-playing is to be expected. In general, the boys seem to be fairly well satisfied with the blaze of interest they have started with price-spirals
right now.

DANGER

While Federal Reserve Chairman Eccles is being given public credit for being the best calamity success, the thing was really started by SEC Chairman Landis in his Georgia speech. After Eccles came Agriculture Secretary Wallace, then Commerce Secretary
Roper, then Assistant Labor Secretary McGrady, then Senators Lewis,
King and Robinson.

These speeches and statements all advertise the severity of some phase of the price-spiral inflation and most blame it on foreign armaments and munitions. (Sit-down strikes) and industry (steel price increase) in this country, which is true. The common motif of
not be true. Apparently the purpose is to cause the nation to hand

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Communist WASHINGTON.

March 19.—The sit-down strike's a Communist device but the Communist surely can't be very bright because every sit-down in this country brings Fascism just that much closer. Fascism is what happens when the people of a nation get country get sick and tired of the lawless goings-on of a very small minority under the guidance of Communist organizers and decide to crash through a few laws themselves to abolish the nuisance at the sacrifice of every one's freedom.

Then there's a lot of fights, the vigilantes throw the fear of God into the community with promiscuous executions and cloutings and some wild-eyed nut in a lion-tamer's uniform moves into office as dictator, barricades himself against every one is required to believe under heavy penalties for dissent. I don't know who our nut would be because he hasn't put his head up yet, but we produce plenty of nuts with the killer instinct and ours would come along, attended by his gang.

This is a nationalistic country with no people do they try to get rid of the Russians or the so-called loyalists of Spain. This country has troubles of its own and was corrodingly cured of alienism toward the people of other countries a long time back beside which the people are religious after a fashion and Communist means alienism and church-burning and sacrifice. This religious feeling may not be very intelligent but it is in the character of the majority of the people, and it is the basis of the Ku Klux Klan and the democratic in recent time. The Ku Klux drove a lot of otherwise harmless amiable people near crazy with the most monstrous lies and had them of a mind to grab the old musket off the wall to strike for their altars and their young ones. If that many Americans could be channeled into that had-dly over strictly imaginary dangers rigged up by a gang of commercial promoters and ignorant preachers, what would few people do if they should see the sit-down develop into a general paralysis of business, convinced that all this represented a foul plot by Moscow?

Some Strikers

I don't suppose there are many sit-down strikers. Some of the strikes have seemed rather frivolous, with the men and women sitting down for long hours and pictures and conducting a dangerous business in the picnic spirit.
Others are very grim and willing to fight somewhat but want to remain in the picture and not become Communists, for the very word means Russian to most Americans. But the method of the sit-down and the aggressive tendency of the movement is a distinctly imported appearance and, argue as you may on the fine points, Americans will lick Communism if they have to.

It is rather strange that some of our statesmen and philosophers are now beginning to realize that the law is against the sit-down. But to entertain the notion that, after all, the law, whatever its imperfections, ought to be respected until we get the better ones or, in any case, more expedient laws, can be had for the asking under Mr. Roosevelt's supreme court plan, all this is very foolish.
But the lawlessness of the sit-down was apparent in Flint and there was then a disposition to rock along and look out of the window and not to mind the matter would be adjusted without a resort to law. Now that example has led to an epidemic of sit-downs. And now, with the problem much enlarged, our best minds perceive something that was obvious way back when.

Lawless Exploits

I am so alarmed at what Fascism, much less Communism, but I have canvassed this case with some very earnest parties in Washington who were full of airy optimism a little while ago and discover that with them the sit-down is no longer a routine matter to be filed on the every spike and taken up presently.
Lawless and irresponsible as the lawless tactics to weaken labor's cause is, just that much and stores up a corresponding degree of resentment among the bulk of the country, which is not sitting down nor grinding the working man but standing in the middle. The strikers don't like the law so they won't obey it, but that isn't the minor matter that it was a few years ago.

It may not come to that but one thing you may gamble on. If the sit-downs continue to the point of paralyzing the works and then go on to sabotage the country, the sympathy they do enjoy now and the nationalistic fantasy will chase them up the alley toward the Italians and the exactly as the Americans.
I think the Americans.

Talmudic Tales

By DAVID MORANTZ.

(Based upon the legends and philosophy found in the Talmud, which work contains the civic and canonical laws of the Jewish people, dating back as far as 3,000 years.)

PEARLS OF WISDOM.

"If thou hast acquired knowledge," says the Talmud, "what dost thou lack? But if thou lackest knowledge, what hast thou acquired?"

"Be eager to acquire knowledge. It does not come to thee on the inheritance."
Be faithful is the intellectual occupation if combined with some practical work.

"He who does not teach his son a trade, neglects his parental duty."
"Love, labor and hate to be a lord."
"Great is the dignity of labor, it honors man."

War Mercenaries.

All of the nations that have protested against the employment of foreign mercenaries in the Spanish civil war have themselves used mercenaries. The French Foreign Legion is 90 per cent
German. Naples and other Italian kingdoms hired French and German troops in their wars between themselves. George III. bought Hessians at $80 a head to fight Americans in the War of Independence. The royal government used German mercenaries against the south in the War Between the States. The British have repeatedly employed mercenaries from India in conflicts.

Australia has a royal northwest mounted police, too, but the "mount-ies" there still use their horses, and don't go in for knifing as do the redcoats of the dominion.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed

Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLLEN

My Dear Louise: Human nature hasn't changed within historical times, and each older generation since the beginning has declared, as this one does: "Young people were better in our time." It isn't true. It couldn't be.
Of course it isn't true. It couldn't be, for if each generation had grown worse, the race would be back in the slime, whereas the obvious truth is that it slowly but surely improves.

Youngsters in the old days had little chance to be fine. They were poorer than people of the same class now. Their environment was more primitive. They bathed once a week, with a wash rag in the kitchen, and they smelled bad.

Their minds were like their bodies. Having few if any esthetic interests and none of our modern forms of entertainment they found their chief interest in sex. Their speech and morality was that of the barnyard.
Of course the little hypocrites outwardly conformed to the prim moral standards of the times, but secret vice was common and their lives as a whole were vulgar, sordid, dirty and ignoble.

They forgot all of that, for vanity's sake, but the best of them could remember shameful things if they'd try hard enough.
Our way of life changes with the increase of luxuries, and now the middle class has so many opportunities to acquire education and culture and refinement that few are denied a fair chance to be decent.
Yet there is still a great difference between the life of the ordinary middle-class youngster and that of the elegant people in society novels, and the result is often tragic.

The ordinary youngster finds enough ugliness and baseness in his home life, his secret conduct and his thoughts to make him ashamed.
And when he reads of cultured swells who think only noble thoughts and never do anything earthy and human, he feels degraded and in-

WHERE IS MY CHILD? SOB, STUNNED PARENTS, SEARCHING 14 TOWNS

Some Carry Bits of Cloth To Identify Unrecognizable Blast Victims.

By TOM REYNOLDS.
OVERTON, Texas, March 19.—(UP)—Grim little caravans moved silently through the east Texas oil country tonight, traveling on foot and in autos from town to town.

There were men with gray, worried faces. Their women carried little scraps of cloth from their sewing baskets.

They went from town to town—14 of them—looking for their dead.

Bodies of children smashed by falling timbers; bodies that were broken and unrecognizable; faces battered so that even a mother would not know her child.

That was why they carried scraps of cloth, to identify the clothes on the mangled children stretched out on tables and benches in the crude morgue rooms. Some bodies had been carried 50 miles away from their homes, as morgues in one town would fill, the bodies would be taken on to others, farther away.

Most of the searchers traveled in silence, stopping only long enough to be sure the body they sought was not in one town, then hurry to the next, fearful their children might be buried before they could find them.

CONSTRUCTION BLAMED IN BLAST DEATH OF 425

talked with the architects and contractors of the building and added that they reported the installation of radiators was the same throughout the structure.

There were 72 radiators, each individually gas fired, in the building, 36 on each floor.

Dr. Schock was sent here by Governor Allred to conduct one of three official investigations. The legislature and the national guard launched inquiries.

Meanwhile bereaved parents laid plans for mass and individual funeral services for their children.

A group service for an undetermined number was planned at the New London Baptist church tomorrow, and there was the possibility of a mass service at Henderson.

Tonight the only activity was in funeral homes where the dead were receiving last ministrations. Such lights burned far into the night at Tyler, Longview, Kilgore, Overton and Henderson—all through the oil belt.

Nearly all the work of embalming and identifying bodies was finished, but relatives most in and out of mourning over a 50-mile area, selecting caskets and making arrangements for final rites.

Toll May Reach 450.

Fatalities in hospitals and in ambulances en route to emergency stations were expected to push the total number of dead past 450.

Many of those who lived are maimed, physicians said, and fractures are evident in almost every case.

Major Howard stood in a deluge of rain as the last of the bodies was carried tenderly from the scene of Texas' greatest disaster since the Galveston flood.

He indicated his belief that accumulated gas, gathered in the crannies and hollow tile of the building's basement, was the basic cause of the disaster.

Major Howard disclosed Ross Maddox, general contractor for the school, the school's "wealthiest school," and E. M. Roberts, electrician on construction of the building, has been asked to appear before the court.

Hard, driving rain in the early morning hours made the final few hours of work of digging for bodies a difficult matter. Workers, stripped to the waist, passed bricks and debris along a hand-to-hand chain, using peach baskets.

Footings was easy on the rocky surface but huge trucks had no traction on the rain-sodden ground and cables snapped frequently with beams in mid-air. Youngsters darted about in the rain, picking up school books blown hundreds of feet away and carrying them away in tin buckets. Coffee in huge buckets was passed around.

No Questions Asked.

At one hospital an anxious father inquired if a "black-haired girl" about 7 had been brought there. There was none of that description.

As he left the room a doctor said the child was in a near-by morgue, crammed into a small room with some 20 additional children.

"I simply cannot tell another parent his child is dead," the doctor said. "He will have to go to the morgue to find out."

DEBATE IS BITTER
OVER SIT-DOWNERS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Angry debate over sit-down strikes rang through both houses of congress today.

It produced rival contentions that the President "gets his orders" from John L. Lewis and that the supreme court is responsible for industrial warfare.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, asserted that sit-downers are "fighting for what they deem to be their rights in an economic system dominated in large measure by lawlessness."

A Michigan Republican, Representative Hoffman, declared that "we have a state of armed rebellion."

Democratic Donkey Sought by Farmer

CLARKSDALE, Miss., March 19.—(AP)—"Queenie," the Mississippi donkey presented the Democratic party following the presidential election, may be returned to her native state for spring plowing.

Lieutenant Governor J. B. Snider, of Mississippi, pondered a letter here today from Bob Harvey, McComb, Miss., farmer, which read:

"I need a mule bad to farm with this year and understand that 'Queenie' is in Washington and the Democratic party does not need her any more. If you will please have her sent to Jackson (Miss.) I will come to Jackson for her."

The letter, sent Governor Hugh White and forwarded to the lieutenant governor, added, "It would be an honor to plow 'Queenie'."

Charles E. Bell, county agent and president of the newly organized body, presented the awards program to about 60 persons present at the Legion community house. A fish dinner was served.

Included among the list of projected improvements for the county during the year were the following:

1. A county-wide drive to interest industry in locating in Fayette. A county and city election to exempt new industries from taxes for a period of five years in the event they locate in Fayette and Fayetteville will be held April 17, and already the chamber is preparing data to present to an imposing list of prospects.
2. Prosecution of a well-balanced farm program. Fayette county's principal activity is farming. Diversification and production of money crops are among the major enterprises contemplated.
3. Extension of the rural electrification program already begun to bring its advantages to every section of the county.
4. Paving of main trunk highways and steps to take full advantage of the federal and state governments' programs for paving of farm-to-market and post roads.
5. Establishment of a county publicity program to "take the advantages of Fayette county to the entire nation."
6. Extend the scope of the livestock program already under way to hog, dairy cattle and breed males in order that Fayette will become one of the best-known counties in the state for production of high-bred stock.

To Retain Railroad.

The chamber also laid plans to resist any movement to abandon the railroad through the county and a special committee was named to ascertain whether any move in that direction is contemplated.

CONSTITUTION'S DAILY CROSS WORD PUZZLE

HIGH NOON

By RUBY M. AYRES

Upon the shoulders of Heather Aston, now 24, has rested the burden of rearing six brothers and sisters, the youngest of whom, Bobbie, now nearly 17, had cost their mother her life. Heather had started her sacrifices when Bobbie was a year old, telling Bruce Logan, who was leaving England for South Africa, that she could not marry him and desert Caesar, as they affectionately called their pomegranate but inefficient father, and their children. Heather has sacrificed means to maintain Tangle, the home his father gave him as a wedding present, and spends his time writing a "book" which is never completed. Paul, the eldest brother, has married a wealthy woman who, after a year, alienated him from his family. Now Bobbie has just married the well-to-do Stephen Miller and left on her honeymoon, leaving Heather out on her efforts to make the wedding a success. Bobbie's romance recalls Bruce Logan vividly to her mind.

Her sister, Vilette, who has been traveling with a second-rate theatrical company in South Africa (Ponsonby is her stage name), writes to announce she is through with the letter is received, and has met the man who is returning on the same steamer. Heather goes to meet the boat train but the man drives Vilette up from Southampton. On Heather's return Vilette introduces him to her. Heather is not interested in the man, but Vilette is. Heather is a motor and aviation, claims him. Vilette bursts into tears, saying Bruce Logan's love for Heather is trying to soothe her when she hears Bruce's car at the door. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

She would get it this time, Heather knew—frustration always made Vilette the more determined, but she thought it seemed an unkind twist of Fate that decreed it should be her own sister who would finally rob her of the man she loved.

"I do love him," Heather told herself simply, and there was neither pain nor joy in the thought. It was just something that had happened—had always been there, even though for a little while absence had lulled it to sleep.

"Coo-ee!" Effie's shrill voice broke the silence, and almost immediately she came into sight, hanging affectionately to Logan's arm.

"We're looking for you," she announced. "Vilette's making up her face to go out with Bruce, so we've come to look for you."

"And now I find I've left my cigarettes in the drawing room," Bruce said breathlessly. "If there is one thing I thoroughly dislike—"

"Of course not!... how could I?... we've known each other so long; why do you always avoid me?"

"I don't—it's absurd—I—"

"Your father intended to take Vilette this morning."

She stared at him helplessly. "How do you know?"

"He told me—just now."

She rallied with an effort, her eyes turned away from him. "Well—Vilette was in bed—and anyway, I wanted to go. I asked him to take me."

"I know that too."

She moved her arm restlessly in the grasp of his hand.

"Have you seen the old fish pond?" and now she tried to free herself, but he spoke her name suddenly, with deep emotion:

"Heather!"

She stood very still, all her body limp like the body of a runner who acknowledges defeat, and he said, "I wonder if you know how much I have thought of you since that morning we said good-bye."

For an agonized moment something within her seemed to contract like a pain, knitting and tormenting her, then she smiled faintly and looked up at him, her eyes resolute.

"I wonder if you know that Vilette loves you," she said.

There was a blank amazement in Bruce's eyes as he stared down at Heather before he said abruptly, "Nonsense!... My dear child—what in the world?... Wherever put such a fantastic idea into your head. In love with me?" and he laughed, though his eyes were still bewildered.

"It's true," Heather said.

"But—we're just ordinary friends," he protested. "Vilette has scores of men friends. The idea is preposterous; besides—"

"But—she said again very gently. "And I think you must be in love with her too—just a little. She's so pretty and attractive and young—"

"There was an unconscious note of wistful envy in the last word, and Logan caught it up sharply to say, "Tough!... Of course she's young. I'm ten years her senior. When I left England she was a school girl."

He stopped with a sort of helplessness, only to go on again with renewed vigor. "It's absurd, Heather—out of all reason. Is this why you have taken so much trouble to avoid me? You were always quixotic."

Heather. Listen to me—you must know—"

Effie came rushing towards them through the trees. "I can't find them anywhere. I've looked in the car, too. Are you sure you haven't smoked them all? Shall I go down to the shop and get some more?"

It was Heather who answered quickly. "The shop will be shut; it's early closing day. Let's go to see if Vilette is ready."

She held out a hand to Effie, but it was ignored, for Effie was once again clinging to Bruce's arm.

"Let me go," she pleaded. "I'll love to go for you. I'll get the old woman up to open the shop—she won't mind—"

Bruce thrust a hand into his jacket pocket. "Why here they are!" he said trying very unsuccessfully to appear astonished.

Effie giggled. "That's like Caesar," she said. "He's always putting a hand in his pocket and pretending to be surprised when he finds some money. Not that I think you're pretending," she added politely.

Heather had gone on ahead of them towards the house. Her mind was in a turmoil; she felt angry and distressed and ashamed. Ought she to have betrayed Vilette? And yet, had she not done as she did, Bruce might have said many things he would have regretted.

Why had he looked so amazed? He must have known that Vilette cared for him. It was true that Vilette had many friends, but she surely her behavior to him had been different. Heather's own experience told her that people in love were always at their best with the loved one. It was cruel of Bruce to be so blind—cruel of him to have so nearly brought about a crisis which had no real foundation. How could he still care for her—when Vilette was there?

As Heather entered the drawing room on her return from the garden she cast a quick glance at her reflection in the long old-fashioned pier-glass. Why she looked quite middle-aged in comparison with Vilette; she was not even well-dressed or any of the things that the modern man had a right to expect in the woman he wished to marry.

Apart from that, the old barrier between them still existed. Even supposing the same wild stretch of the imagination that Bruce had been serious, how could she leave Caesar and the family? She was no more free today than she had been all those 10 years ago.

But of course he had not meant anything—he was mistaking pity for the old affection—"pity!" The word made her cheeks burn as she supposed, trying to see the humorous side of it, that Bruce had been what Betty would have called "trying not to let her down."

Vilette came running down the stairs. "I'm ready," she announced, her eyes searching around quickly for Bruce. "Why—where is he?" she asked.

"He's coming—he's in the garden with Effie."

"Don't worry if we're late coming home," Vilette said.

Bruce and Effie joined them. "Lucky dog," Effie said enviously. "I hope when I get a young man he'll have a car like Bruce's."

Vilette laughed and looked quickly at Bruce, but there was no responding smile in his eyes.

Bobbie rushed forward to enquire if Bruce would be staying the night. "No—I'll get back to town, thanks."

"Will you be down tomorrow?" the boy asked anxiously.

"I don't know—I'll ring up if I may."

The car started noisily away.

Heather went back to the house. Perhaps this evening, when Bruce and Vilette came home, Vilette would have got her way once again—would have "made" him propose to her as she had boasted she would do. It all seemed so terribly unromantic and businesslike.

She went up to her room and stood for a long time looking out of the window. Would the day never end? "Nerves won't become your particular style of beauty," she told herself severely. She turned away from the window—she must get something to do—occupation was the best cure for nerves. Halfway across the room she stopped and looked back at the dressing table. Its top right-hand drawer was the only one in the house she ever locked. Unwise to confuse ghosts from the past, but she found the key and deliberately unlocked the drawer. A packet of letters, two old-fashioned dance programs with their pink pencils attached—nobody ever used them now—two pairs of gloves worn out and she had kept them because Bruce had given them to her. She faded snapshots in which she herself looked quaint and prim in a long, tight skirt and with her hair in a big "bob."

At the back of the topmost photograph a few words were scrawled in his handwriting:

"Here are the snaps—I've cut one to fit into that letter case you gave me. I shall always carry it, in memory of the happiest day in my life."

Yours ever, "Bruce."

That "happiest day" had been the one at which the woman with the wood pigeons cooing overhead.

Did Bruce still have his copy of the photograph, she wondered. And almost laughed at the idea. Since then he had traveled so far from her, not only in miles across the world, but from the dreams they had shared.

She laid the photograph down and took up the uppermost letter. It was the last she had ever received from him, written from South Africa. It began abruptly:

"You have not answered any of my letters, so I suppose you meant it when you said goodbye. I can only say that your conception of duty and mine lie miles apart. You are sacrificing our whole lives and happiness, Heather—and some day you will realize your mistake."

Heather put the little note away and locked the drawer. She felt as if she had deliberately put a knife into a wound that had almost healed, and had ripped it open again.

High noon!

How foolish people were to look back into a past which nothing could ever recapture; it was not like her to be so unwise. For years she had been proud of her impetuosity and philosophy, but now... she was lying on the bed, her face buried in her arms before she was conscious of having let the water run. The great waters so long kept at bay broke around her.

JUST NUTS

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

A letter from a reader in Boiesevain, Manitoba, contains interesting questions about two planets:

"Dear Uncle Ray: Will you please explain how Jupiter can have only five hours of daylight and five hours of night? And why does Mars have a day 20 minutes longer and a night 20 minutes longer than the day and night of the earth?"

Ethel Zeiler.

The days and nights depend on the speed with which the planets twist around. Some twist much faster than others.

The planet Mars twists around once in the space of 24 hours, 37 minutes and 23 seconds. This means that on the average daylight and darkness each last half of that time. Mars has seasons, the same as the earth, and there are long days at a given place in summer, and short days in winter, but taking the average we can count daylight and darkness as "half and half."

The giant planet Jupiter has a much faster rate of turning. It twists around once in nine hours and 55 minutes. A certain place on Jupiter receives light from the sun for close to five hours each day, and is turned away from the sun close to five hours each night—on the average.

The planet Uranus seems to be the least known of the planets. It is 19 times as far from the sun as the earth. It twists around in 10 hours and 50 minutes, meaning almost five and one-half hours of daylight, and almost five and one-half hours of darkness.

Of course the "hour" is an invention of people. A day is a very real thing, a fact of nature which we could not change, and the same is true of a year. An hour, on the other hand, is just something to make it easy to count time. Credit is given to the old Egyptians for being first to divide daylight into 12 parts. They had shadow clocks which marked its parts, or hours, in the morning and afternoon. The planet Mars divided the night into 12 parts, making a total of 24 hours.

During this period of the year, the dividing line between winter and spring, we are having days with nearly the same amount of daylight and darkness. In June, when the earth is with far more daylight than darkness, and next December nights will be longer than our periods of daylight. The changes are due to the tilt in the earth's axis, for the turning of the earth always takes 24 hours. On the average we can say we have 12 hours of night and 12 hours of daylight.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL FOR SENATE DISTRICT EXCLUSIVE TO FULTON

Governor Expected To Sign Constitutional Amendment for Vote in June.

Submission of a constitutional amendment which would make Fulton county a separate state senatorial district was approved yesterday by the house of representatives and now goes to Governor Rivers for his signature. The amendment will be voted on in the election of June 8. The senate approved the proposal two weeks ago. It was sponsored by Senator G. Everett Millican, of Atlanta.

At present there are 51 senatorial districts in the state, Fulton being a part of the 35th district, which also includes Clayton and Henry counties. Until last year the counties followed the rotation rule, Fulton having the senator for two terms, and Henry and Clayton counties having the member one term each.

Last year Fulton county asked Clayton to waive the courtesy rule in order that Senator Millican might have a second term and get through the amendment approved yesterday. It was passed by the assembly two years ago and Governor Talmadge vetoed it. Clayton county declined to waive the rule, but the senate, permitting Senator Millican to run for re-election, he won by a large majority.

Senator Millican expressed deep appreciation when notified the measure had been given a favorable vote on a house roll call.

"The members of both the senate and house of representatives have been more than fair to Fulton county," the Atlanta said. "They realize that the largest county in the state, which has important business every session of the assembly, should always have one of its own citizens in the senate. I feel certain the people will give their approval at the general election."

Downstate supporters of the proposal in the house of representatives pointed out that the need for a senator from Fulton county was shown during the current session more than ever before. They stressed the fact that a number of major Atlanta local bills have been acted on and that had the senator been from either Clayton or Henry counties he could not have easily familiarized himself with the needs of the city so as to intelligently act on the bills.

An effort was made six years ago to create a new senatorial district out of the counties of Cook and Berrien but this was voted down by the people.

EX-MAYOR PLEADED BY DAUGHTER'S FINE

CLEVELAND, March 20.—(UP)—When 18-year-old Betty Townes was arrested for speeding she gave her father the ticket. Clayton C. Townes, former mayor of Cleveland and for many years member of the city council, paid the ticket in his pocket and left town on a business trip. When he returned, he took the blame before an irate judge for Betty's failure to appear in court on the proper date.

Then as his daughter's attorney he entered a plea of guilty, stating he believed she needed a lesson. Betty was fined $5 and her license revoked for 30 days.

Edmund Lowe Is Sleuth On Loew's Grand Screen

"Under Cover of Night," mystery film with plenty of laughs and wisecracks, began a week's run at Loew's Grand theater yesterday and pleased the premier day audiences.

Edmund Lowe is the star of the film, playing the role of Christopher (Chris) Cross, a scientific sleuth who does not let science interfere with either humor or romance.

Others in the cast are Dorothy Peterson, last seen in the Dionne quintuplet films; Henry Daniell, who played in "Camille"; Nat Pendleton, the Sandow of "The Great Ziegfeld"; and Henry Fothergill, the unforgettable trier of "Romeo and Juliet."

A novel twist to the film is that the audience gets a chance to do a little sleuthing too. In fact, the audience finds the clues, just like the sleuth on the screen. You'll like this idea of trying to solve a mystery.

Florence Rice plays opposite Lowe, and other supporting players are Dean Jagger, Theodore Von Eltz, Sara Haden, Frank Reicher, Marla Shelton, Zeffie Tilbury and Harry Davenport.

Novel Musical Comedy Opens at Fox Theater

Something really new in a motion picture with music was unfolded yesterday on the Fox theater screen when "Ready, Willing and Able" opened a week's engagement.

The novel feature of the film is its plot, based on the story by Richard Macaulay, well-known novelist, which was kept virtually intact, making a radical departure for films of the musical-comedy plot.

Starred in this highly geared film are Ruby Keeler, well known to movie goers, and Lee Dixon, sensational young dancer, recruited from the stage. Dixon has what it takes and should prove a hit with fans.

The supporting cast brings to the screen such stellar personalities as Winifred Shaw, husky-voiced contralto; Carol Hughes, last seen in the hilarious "Three Men on a Horse," and always good-for-a-laugh Allen Jenkins.

Shaw and Lee, Louise Fazenda, Teddy Hart and Hugh O'Connell also do their bits to make this picture a musical of the better kind. Musical numbers, with dances, are arranged by Bobby Connolly, include "Too Marvelous for Words," "Just a Quiet Evening," "Handy With Your Feet" and "Sentimental and Melancholy."

Short features complete the bill.—M. H.

Robbers Enter Hot Springs Grill, Line Up 10 Guests and Escape.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 19.—(AP)—Five masked men robbed the Southern Club and Grill and about 10 guests of $8,100 late today and escaped.

Frank Stroud, employe, said the robbers came in the back door, forced everyone to line up with their backs turned and ordered him to open the safe.

About $1,500 in bills and silver was taken from the safe, W. S. Jacobs, proprietor, reported to police.

In departing, three of the men left by the back door and the other two were lost in the crowd passing in front of the club on Hot Springs main thoroughfare, Stroud said.

NEW ORLEANS, Ark., March 19.—(AP) Chief of Detectives John J. Groesch said today search was started here for Joseph J. Bruno, 52-year-old Pennsylvania man, who escaped after being given a life sentence for murder in connection with a mass slaying at Kew-Forest, Pa., during a political demonstration.

Bruno fled jail at Pottsville, Pa., last December and Pennsylvania authorities informed Chief Groesch that he was believed he came here.

George Arliss Scores In Film Hit at Rialto

That grand veteran of the stage and screen, George Arliss, returned to the screen of the Rialto theater yesterday in an entertaining film, "East Meets West."

The inimitable Arliss is cast as the sultan of a small oriental country, which possesses a port for which England and another nation are rivals.

To complicate matters, the sultan's son is in love with the wife of a run-arounding British officer. With these plot twists to keep the interest going, the story moves at a swift pace.

Arliss adds to his long list of notable screen portrayals in his role of the sultan. It is reminiscent of his famous oriental role in "The Green Goddess," the smash stage and screen hit that proved one of the noted actor's best and most memorable roles.

The supporting cast includes Godfrey Totter, Lucie Mannheim, Ronald Ward, Norma Varden, John Laurie and many others.

Rounding out the bill are short subjects, all of which made a hit with yesterday's opening day audiences.—C. F. C.

2 KILLED, 4 SEIZED IN N.Y. POLICE TRAP

Shooting in Crowded Street Follows Holdup of Fur Manufacturer.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Two men died in blazing gunfire, one was wounded and three others were captured as police sprung a trap on a gang of suspected fur thieves late today.

The men were shot after holding up a fur manufacturer in crowded 29th street.

The shots were fired by a large detail of detectives who had surrounded the building.

The two who were killed were holding fully loaded revolvers when they were shot. They were Julius Richman, 33, and Joseph Epstein, 44, both of Brooklyn. The wounded man was James Thompson, 21, also of Brooklyn.

The arrested identified themselves as David Silvers, 33; Joseph Catrone, 27; and George Blickendorf, 27.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED BY SENATOR BILBO

Case Is Scheduled To Be Heard Third Monday in May.

POPTARVILLE, Miss., March 19.—(AP)—United States Senator Theodore G. Bilbo has filed a suit for divorce against his wife, Mrs. Lina Gaudy Bilbo, in the Pearl river county chancery court, it was disclosed here today.

Chancery Clerk Rouse, a relative of the junior senator from Mississippi, confirmed reports of the divorce proceedings tonight, but would not discuss the nature of the complaint. The case is scheduled to come before the chancery court the third Monday in May.

Clerk Rouse said Senator Bilbo was being represented in the litigation by "the entire bar of Pearl River county."

The divorce suit was believed to be in retaliation of legal proceedings filed by Mrs. Bilbo in a Washington (D. C.) court recently in which she sought to collect funds for her support under what she termed an agreement of separate maintenance.

ONE KILLED, 1 INJURED IN LOUISIANA TORNADO

EPPS, La., March 19.—(AP)—One person was killed and another seriously injured late today in a tornado which demolished eight or ten houses in the Monticello community eight miles east of here.

L. J. Smith, 30-year-old farmer, was killed when his home was razed, and his wife suffered a fractured collarbone and concussion of the brain.

BALDWIN IS REFUSED DIRECTED ACQUITTAL

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 19.—(AP)—The court ruled against a directed acquittal for Charles Bufington Baldwin today, bringing an expression of gratification from the 41-year-old defendant because "I want to tell my story" about the death of his recently mother.

The ruling came on completion of the state's resting in the trial which grew out of the death of Mrs. Juliette Bufington Baldwin, 40, of Huntington.

His lawyers will start tomorrow building their claim that the son could have had nothing to do with the death of his socially prominent mother.

Martha Lion Still Keeps Secret On Boy and Girl Cubs in Litter

'Naming' Contestants May Send in Eight Names, for Safety Sake, or Closing Date for Entries May Be Delayed.

By THE LION EDITOR.
Lion namers of Atlanta are getting as excited over the deep, dark secret of how many boy lions and how many girl lions Mama Martha has at Grant park as they are over the prospect of winning the cash awards offered in The Constitution's Lion Namers' contest.

It is all Mama Lion's secret right now and she is guarding it with all the ferocity of a jungle queen. Your old friend, Uncle Matt Leonard, head keeper at the zoo, reported yesterday he tried to get Martha to let him in on her secret, but it was dangerous business.

It is dangerous for the little cubs, too," he said. "Lions are funny creatures, you know. Mama Martha wants some good names for her children, but if we were to go into the cage and try to talk her into letting us in on the secret, she would think we were trying to harm her cubs and she would kill them. That's the way mama lions are."

Must Be Patient.
"The boys and girls in Atlanta schools will just have to be patient and wait until we can tell them how many names for boy lions and how many for girl lions to send in for their entries in the contest."

But you read yesterday how one little girl in the Forsyth school solved the problem and already has sent in her entry.

She just listed four names for boy cubs and four for girl cubs—and that will take care of any circumstance. You can do that, too. And the judges will consider the first names on your list. For instance, you can send in eight names now and if it turns out there are three boy cubs and one girl cub, the judges will consider the first three names you have written for boy cubs and the first name you list for girl cubs.

May Delay Contest.

Tibbett Sings for His Audience And Receives Deafening Acclaim

Atlanta Turns Out in Force To Hear Famous Opera Baritone and He Wins Audience in Greater Degree Than Any Other Star Here.

By LEE ROGERS.
Lawrence Tibbett was singing for Atlanta last night.

He departed from his program at the Georgia theater at the repeated request of the audience to sing songs familiar to all and as his reward he got encore after encore.

All Atlanta was represented at the concert. "He came from all walks of life and were thrilled by the songs of the famous opera baritone."

It was after intermission that Tibbett endeared himself to the audience. It was then that he displayed his human side, was humorous, and laughed with the crowd. Egocores greeted him. He sang the "Road to Mandalay" as a portion of the crowd was leaving, thinking he would not sing any more. He followed this with the "Glory Road." Then the autograph seekers flocked to the stage.

When he came to the place on the program where "De Hallelujah Rhythm" was listed, he paused to make an announcement to the audience. Next song when I made my concert program last fall because it was one of those which I sang in my last picture. But, lo and behold, when the picture came out it didn't have an "Hallelujah Rhythm" but some other kind of rhythm. I found I was just another voice on the cutting room floor. I hope you didn't see that picture."

That caught the audience in a jovial mood and in such, both the singing actor and his listeners remained for the remainder of the program. He drew long applause following the singing of "The Rag Pipe Man," "I've Got Plenty of Nothing," "Old Mother Hubbard," and "Shortnin' Bread."

Most of these were request numbers which Tibbett sang for encores. On his regular program were "Oh Whither Art Thou Roaming," by Marcantonio Cesti; "I Am a Roamer Bold," by Felix Mendelssohn; "By the Sea," by Schubert; "While Tramping," by Hugo Wolf; "In the Silent Night," by Bach; "The Water Mill," by Vaughan Williams, and "Come Buy," by Buzzi-Pecchi.

Stewart Willie accompanied him at the piano and rendered several solos, including "Prelude From Cantata No. 35," by Bach-Silotti, and "Impromptu in F Sharp Major," by Chopin. Gracious and easy-mannered, Willie appeared at ease at all times. The audience applauded him on numerous occasions.

Lawrence Tibbett apparently won his Atlanta audience as no one else has. At any rate, no one else received a more enthusiastic reception.

NO COLLUSION IS SEEN IN DIVORCE FOR WALLY

One of Last Obstacles Cleared for Wedding of Mrs. Simpson and Edward.

LONDON, March 19.—(AP)—An elderly little lawyer's clerk, won over from patriotism to the cause of love by the unhappy heart of his king, helped today to clear one of the last obstacles to the marriage of Edward of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The white-mouthed clerk, Francis Stephenson, at first resented his monarch's preference for a woman over an empire, and determined to thwart him from carrying out his historic decision. He decided to stop the divorce which would make it possible.

But today, touched by the plaintive note of former King Edward's farewell broadcast when he said, "I cannot continue to discharge my duties without the woman I love," the little, bespectacled clerk stepped aside from the affairs of state and cupid.

He withdrew his objections and Sir Boyd Merriam, president of the British divorce court, formally dismissed the charge of "collusion," a barrier which could have prevented Edward and Mrs. Simpson from marrying.

The court's decision, striking the intervention from the record, completely absolved Mrs. Simpson from any legal irregularity. The King's proctor told the court that, treating the case "as any other," he found no evidence to justify intervention. Her divorce, in the normal course of events, now may become final April 27.

Economist Forecasts Woman President

BOSTON, March 19.—(AP)—Declaring women already own 70 percent of the nation's private wealth, Ralph B. Wilson, vice president of Babson's Reports, Inc., tonight predicted they would eventually own all of it and that a woman "some day" would sit in the White House "if present tendencies continue."

Wilson said women have "a great opportunity," but also a "grave responsibility," to take a greater interest in government, investment and business conditions to "help preserve our American institutions."

CIVITAN OFFICIAL ADDRESSES P-T. A.

Illiteracy Incompatible With Democracy, Says Arthur Cundy Here.

Declaring that "illiteracy is incompatible with democracy," Arthur Cundy, secretary of Civitan International, voiced a plea for education last night at a "daddy's night" meeting of the Morrisville Parent-Teachers' Association, held in the school auditorium.

"We have not progressed as far as we think," said Cundy, "for we have a higher illiteracy, in proportion, than Japan. Money spent for education is well spent, especially in rural education."

Cundy, who recently returned from an extended European trip, said the "extreme regimentation of the youth in European countries, and the sacrificial lives they are forced to lead, means that if a war does come in which this country is involved, it will be harder for us to meet them than in 1918."

He explained, in this connection, that in this country, youth is progressing with ease and facility, while in Europe, youths find themselves merely cogs in a machine.

RAIL FREIGHT CHARGES ARE RAISED BY I. C. C.

Few Items Affected, But Significance Seen in Agency's Attitude.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission voted freight rate increases today on a list of miscellaneous articles.

The increases, asked by the railroads, are effective at midnight tonight.

The commodities involved in today's action include soap and related articles, Christmas trees, wall paper, and boilers and machinery moving in various parts of the country.

Commission officials said the amount of additional revenue the increases would produce would be negligible. Significance, however, was seen in the decision in some quarters as a possible hint of a favorable commission attitude toward a large list of increases on other products which the roads have proposed. The larger list, to go into effect next April 20, is estimated to yield about $10,000,000 additional revenue annually.

These tariffs embrace commodities which were withdrawn from the general rate increase proceeding still pending before the commission, and are those on which increases can be made without exceeding the maximum limits prescribed by the commission.

DAN PYNES SISTER ILL; DETROIT MAN SOUGHT

Atlanta police last night received a radiogram from Detroit police to be on the watch for Dan Pynes, 28, of that city, who is motoring to Annapolis, Md.

We are so interested to have many men take an interest in gardening that I must be sure to write some of my spring garden notes about the things that they are especially interested in. Can you guess what that will be?

Dahlias. Almost all men love to grow dahlias, and they always succeed. First they are interested, they never garden just because someone else is doing it. Then they are willing to give what it takes to do a good job. Men who garden always give the necessary attention to the soil. They seem to understand the fundamentals more than women do. They garden for the physical exercise, rather than for the beauty of the garden. And dahlias take physical exercise.

But all men who grow dahlias do not know that dahlias like a slightly acid soil, to be technical, pH 4.1-5.2. They like the soil to be very porous and pliable and cultivated deep. Now remember this talk is for men, so I will be bold to say, three feet deep. You know if a man wants soil dug three feet deep so that he can grow dahlias as big as dinner plates he will not hesitate to do so. That is one thing I like about men, when they run for a street car they usually catch it.

Now is the time to be preparing this soil, for the longer it has to mellow the better it will be for growing dahlias. If you will prepare each hole properly you will find that the entire area is mostly worked up. I am not going to say here for so many people think that a hole is a very small opening in the ground. So I think that I will say prepare a big opening in the ground according to these directions. (To Be Continued on Monday).

Atlanta U.D.C. Chapter Members Will Hear Mrs. Hays Lecture

Featuring the meeting of the Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., on Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock will be an address by Mrs. J. E. Hays, historian of Georgia, and in charge of the department of archives and history. Her subject will be "Retreat of Joseph E. Johnston From Dalton to Atlanta."

This address will be of particular interest to the chapter and their friends at this time as the chapter activities just now are mainly directed to the history of the Battle of Atlanta.

The chapter will unite with the Atlanta Battlefield Park Association in marking historic spots in and around Atlanta. The chapter is also sponsoring a movement to get an appropriation for much needed work to be done on the Confederate cemetery in Georgia.

The Atlanta chapter was instrumental in having the Resaca Confederate cemetery the first Confederate cemetery in existence, cleaned and will soon place a tablet on the entrance column marking this cemetery as the first. The cemetery is owned by the state but has become inaccessible from the growth of underbrush.

Mrs. C. E. Barber, chairman of music, will present Miss Edna Whitmore who will direct a chorus from the Girls' High school.

Tea will be served with the following ladies as hostesses: Mesdames P. B. Davenport, Odie Poundstone, Houston Crane, James R. Thornton, and John Hancock. Mrs. Forrest Kibler, the president, will preside, and invitation is extended to Daughters and friends to attend.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

RELAX AND EXERCISE.

There is nothing to equal relaxing for loveliness. It has even reached the point where you are urged to relax and take your exercise!

Miss Rose Bernie, who advocates relaxing for beauty while exercising for your figure, gives specific directions for this seemingly impossible trick: "Learn to breathe as rhythmically as if you were sleeping soundly."

Take the movements slowly, and stretch. Then, lie down and rest. It is during rest following exercise that the muscles are built up.

On the whole, more people are tired from lack of exercise than from an overdose of it, but exercise never should increase nervous tension. Planned physical activity to counterbalance mental work should leave you pleasantly tired and relaxed. For this reason stretching exercises, which are extremely relaxing in their effects are favored. Begin your relaxing exercises with this simple movement:

Stand with feet together, hands clasped high overhead and the entire body stretching upward. Now, holding the hips still, circle the trunk at the waist, rotating in wide, easy circles.

The program should be progressive and the second exercise more stretch. Stand with feet together, bend the trunk forward to form a right angle with the hips, then bend backward, letting the head drop back loosely on the neck of the neck, with knees bent forward in front. Three times will be enough.

Now, stretch for posture: Stand with feet comfortably apart, and bend the body backward, chin tilted up high in air. Standing in this position, swing both arms lazily. This exercise strengthens the muscles of the back, shoulders, upper arms and abdomen.

Finally, for a really thorough stretch: Lie flat on the floor on the stomach, arms straight out at the sides, feet stretching toward the heels. Raise arms, legs and head as high off the floor as you can get them; return to the floor and relax. It will help you to maintain rhythm if you count while doing the exercise. The exercise gets every muscle in the body, including those that are to blame for double chins and that kittle-top roll.

Never exercise to the point of fatigue. Stop at intervals and rest for your exercise should help you to relax.

GRAND JURY PROTESTS
LEGALIZED GAMBLING

Fulton Body Passes Resolutions Against Proposed Legislation.

The Fulton grand jury, in special resolution, yesterday protested legislation of horse racing, dog racing and the operation of slot machines, declaring such activities will bring "a horde of gamblers and touts and undesirable citizens" into the state and "would have the effect of debauching our own citizens for the sake of a little revenue."

The resolutions were addressed to Roy Harris, as speaker, of the house of representatives; John P. Spivey, president of the senate, and Governor Rivers. They were signed by Foreman Lewis C. Greig, Secretary Nelson Crist and 22 of the 23 jurors, the other member being absent.

Protesting the passage of the proposed laws, the grand jury said they believed such law would be harmful to Atlanta and the state at large.

"We are advised as to conditions prevailing in Florida where this experiment has been made. The licensing of gambling in Florida has been so hurtful to communities of that state that dog racing and slot machines have been recently voted out."

"In Jacksonville legalized gambling has been so hurtful to merchants and businessmen of that city that it seriously interfered with the collection of honest debts, due to the fact that gamblers had gambled away wages and salaries on horse and dog races and slot machines."

"To legalize gambling would bring into this state, and among our midst, a horde of gamblers and touts and undesirable citizens for the sake of a little revenue, without considering the evils it would bring and great loss that would be sustained by the citizens of this state."

They then quoted opinions on legalized gambling from George W. Wickesham, former attorney general of the United States, and of Dr. Edward G. Mackay, of the First Methodist church, of Atlanta.

"We appeal to our local representatives and to the representatives at large to oppose these measures."

EASY TO KEEP LITTLE ONE DAINTY IN THIS PRETTY FROCK.

Pattern 4305

No scarcity of "bows" for this young charmer. Is there? At least, not when three small perky ones adorn her cunning quiff. Her frock is dainty enough for parties, pretty for kindergarten or early school years for girls from two to ten! Aren't those sleeve and shoulder frills adorable? The sleeve frill may be omitted in a version for warmer days, and the frock will remain just as fetching. A dainty pantie pattern accompanies that of the frock. Busy mothers will appreciate the ease with which Pattern 4305 may be made, and want to make up several for their "young hopefuls." Pretty as a picture in crisp dotted swiss, organdy or percale.

Alliance Francaise Will Present French Film Today at Theater

The film committee of the Atlanta Alliance Francaise presents "Prenex Garde la Peinture," with Simone Simon, this morning at the Tenth street theater. There will be two showings, one at 10 o'clock and another at 11:30 o'clock, and will feature superimposed English titles for those less acquainted with French.

"Prenex Garde la Peinture" is drawn from the comedy by Rene Franchois, which play enjoyed a tremendous success of over 400 performances at the Theater des Mathurins in Paris. The source of the story is the same as that of "The Late Christopher Bean."

A small-town doctor's daughter loves a poor young artist, with her parents' disapproval, until the intervention of some comical and unforeseen events change the situation.

Simone Simon, now in Hollywood's spotlight, was first discovered in France by the eminent director, Henri Chamette. As the doctor's daughter in this French film her delicious smile and provocative eyes won the hearts of French audiences before she was ever seen in this country. Public and press are unanimous in declaring this film one of the best, a true comedy of exquisite charm, keen humor and hearty gaiety.

Gov. and Mrs. Slaton Honor Bridal Couple

Miss Nancy Waldo Jones and fiancé, Dr. William Wright Bryan, of Athens, were married at 12:30 p.m. at a luncheon preceded the meeting. Mrs. Moreland Spear, chairman of arrangements, decorated the rooms with jonquils and delphinium to carry out the colonial colors. Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, president, presided.

The following delegates to the national meeting to be held in Cincinnati in May were announced: Mrs. S. M. Page Rees, Mrs. Edwin McKenzie, Montezuma; Miss Annie Laurie Hill, Mrs. J. N. Downey, Gainesville; Mrs. Mildred V. Rhodes, Athens. Alternates are Mrs. Hugh Hardin, Forsyth; Mrs. Ellis D. Robb, Mrs. Harvey Smith, Mrs. John M. Simmons, Bainbridge; Mrs. W. C. Carpenter, Mrs. Samuel F. Smith Jr., Mrs. John E. Lane, Jackson; Mrs. Moreland Spear, Mrs. Lewis E. Hill and Mrs. Thomas S. Parrott, Newnan; Mrs. John B. Satterfield, Mrs. W. R. Hayes, Macon; Mrs. Edward Caldwell, chaplain.

The interior of the lovely home was beautifully decorated with quantities of pastel-shaded garden flowers. The table in the dining room was covered with an imported lace cloth and was centered with a silver basket filled with roses and snapdragons.

Mrs. Slaton received her guests wearing a becoming model of hyacinth-blue chiffon trimmed in lace. Miss Jones was lovely in her model of "It was one Night" boasted to major strength; B. P. Schulberg and the Warner Brothers.

Stars of yesterday found a working haven in the street of cheap pictures when the paying public says, "enough." Herbert Rawlinson, Betty Compton, Eddie Quillan, Bryant Washburn, Tim McCoy, William Hopper, Charles Ray, Grace Bradley, Madge Bellamy, William Boyd, Monte Blue, Conrad Nagel and Ken Maynard are a few of the favorites finding solace from the misadventures of the public before the cameras of "quickie" productions.

Exceptions to this rule are Poverty Row and the Preston company. Guy Rogers, Bruce Cabot, Lay Ayes, H. B. Warner. Three years ago, Foster appeared in "Corruption," for William Burke productions. The film cost $15,000 and was completed within a week. The leading man received less than $1,000 for his role. Premiered in New York's Mayfair theater, the film made $1,500 in one week—10 per cent of the total cost. As a result, Foster was signed by Fox, later with R. K. O-Radio and now earns $40,000 per film.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

PART-SCORE BIDDING.
A player may make a forcing take-out on opening suit or no-trump bid of one, or a forcing rebid over partner's response, despite a part-score, with a jump of one trick in a new suit. These bids are forcing for only one round. The usual honor trick requirements may be shaded by the responder with solid suits or two-suiters. He should not shade the honor requirements for the forcing take-out on any balanced hand which offers strong defense against a possible opposing overcall.

After the forcing take-out, the opener must bid at least once he raises responder's suit, it is in turn forcing for one round. If he bids a new suit or jumps one trick in his own suit, it also is forcing for one round. As in the case of the opening two bid, any bid in a new suit or any jump in a suit previously bid is forcing for one round thereafter. But if either partner simply rebids his suit or bids no-trump, the other may pass.

South's bidding may appear to have been overly aggressive, but this was not actually the case. North had given him a free raise and South could not have been blamed if, after that, he had insisted on a slam. North's raise was of the type that almost invariably leads to calamity. His one honor trick and singleton were not ample compensation for his inadequate trump support. Moreover, a free raise of a minor suit, particularly, implies, although it does not guarantee, four trumps.

West, feeling that the redouble called for special measures, decided against a heart opening and led, instead, his fourth best spade, Dummy's ace won, and a heart was led to the ace. A low heart was ruffed, and declarer's hand entered with the club ace. A third heart was ruffed, and now declarer made his fatal error.

With the necessity of re-entering his hand in order to ruff his last heart, he used a problematical entry instead of a sure one. On the assumption that the club finesse would have to be taken soon or later, he took it at this point. West ruffed, and promptly banded down the ace of trumps, thus prohibiting a heart ruff. The contract was down one.

Declarer's club finesse had been premature by just one trick. It was vital for him to ruff the fourth heart, and the only certain method of doing this was to enter his hand by ruffing a spade. Only after all the hearts had been taken care of should the club finesse have been risked. The second club lead still would have been ruffed by West, but the opponents would have been held to this ruff and the ace of trumps.

WHAT HOLDS US MEN

By NINO MARTINI

By NINO MARTINI.

To ask a bachelor this question is like asking an aviator what fish he saw at the bottom of the sea on his flight across the continent.

But transcendental aviators and bachelors—at least, bachelors—have imagination, so I'll try to answer the question for my personal case.

Mutual interests, mutual friends and a real love of each other and of music are essential if a singer and his wife are to be happy together.

Operatic performances and concerts make great entertainment, but practice—well, that is a different story. A wife who is a music lover will understand and may even enjoy listening to scales and incessant repetition. But a wife who is not will probably scream before the top note is reached, and destroy the furniture when she hears a phrase of a song for 12 successive times.

Musicians talk music, eat music, live music. If a wife is not interested, she will be bored, not only with her husband but also with his friends. Nothing destroys a happy marriage more quickly than that.

My pet hates are excessive art work on human faces and over-indulgence in liquor and cigars. I would not want a wife who daubed her face with color like a painter's palette, nor one who "just could not live" without her cocktails and her cigars. These things destroy a woman's health, beauty and charm.

If I ever marry, I want to be the man in my home. My wife must not do the things I dislike, nor attempt to run my life for me.

However, I understand that clever women get their own way, even with the "men," and that the husband never suspects he is being mastered. Well, that would be all right with me—as long as I really don't suspect that I am not rock of the walk!

The plunging platform came slowly into view: on it 12 pianos at which were seated 12 men and women, composers of popular songs; folk songs, swing songs, blues songs and ballads.

One at a time they were introduced to the audience as they played the tunes that everybody recognized. When 11 of the 12 had done their stunts and taken their bows up rose the twelfth, an old man with gray hair, bent back and hunched voice. He was the composer of "Sweet Adeline." He wouldn't let that opportunity pass without having a word to say. For 40 years he explained Adeline had been a mighty good sweetheart to him. Now he was going to sing about her and he wanted the audience to join in the chorus—the last chorus. The first one was to be his solo. An indulgent chuckle swept that great throng. Without a moment's hesitation the 11 musicians gallantly joined the accompaniment while the proud old boy sang lustily. The second chorus—and thousands of voices joined in to do him homage. It was a thrilling sight and sound: the old man now relegated to the background (though the harp shop tenors will never lose Adeline), the old man sitting reared back at his piano, playing and singing his tune while the multitude applauded. Pathos and humor always near together chased each other around that huge hall. Not a face but was wreathed

Naturally we are not licking our chops over the prospect of being old—not even to prove that we have what it takes to go through with it. None of us wants to retire from the center of the stage, whether it is a public or a private one and be pushed back into the wings of life. But the time is coming to one and all, if something worse doesn't overtake us, and if we expect to be called out to take an occasional bow it will be up to us to show something of the spirit of pluck that youth admires and applauds.

Crackers Show Definite Promise of Power in Batting Drill

Up in Nashville, Tenn.-O-See, they are talking about a pennant. There must be some mistake about this, as we are talking about a pennant in our town. They must not have been reading the papers.

Those Vols haven't won a baseball flag since 1916. They have come close once or twice. But somehow those Vols always stumble in the stretch.

Nevertheless, they are talking about a pennant up there in Tenn.-O-See. Those Vols were second to the Crackers last year. They were a bad second, but nevertheless a second.

They had a lot of power up there at the plate. And there were days when they had pitching that couldn't be hit. But never did they get the two together for any lengthy span of time. They failed in almost every important crisis. And that never wins baseball flags. And little else, for that matter.

I see by the papers that Blinky Horn, the tall and solemn gentleman who probably knows more Southern league baseball than anyone else in the business, has looked upon Those Vols and found them a better ball club at this period of the year than they were in 1936.

This is a little bit disquieting. Because, having looked on our nine, it is still impossible to determine if they are as good or better than they were last year.

There is an idea, running loosely about in the old skull, that this year's Cracker nine might be even better than the one of 1936.

THERE ARE REASONS.

There are reasons for this. In the first place, the Cracker pitching may be even better than it was last year. My faithful crystal ball is missing. Otherwise I would peer into it and see. But if that pitching staff should develop, then all this pennant talk in other spots is idle gossip.

Our nine has this advantage. We think we have everything we need.

The others are looking for something they know they need. Those Vols, for instance, are looking for a catcher and a shortstop. Other clubs are looking for this and that to plug up holes.

We think we've got all we need. And you can't arrest a fellow for thinking. Although, at that, one of our judges has just done so. Maybe we'd best be a little careful. It's relatively easy, in these brisk days, to be heaved into the jug. But, nevertheless, we do think we've got all the ball players we need.

If that pitching comes through, the Crackers will center to their third successive pennant.

Because the outfield is improved. And even this early, it looks as if young Hugh Luby is going to be a help around second base. Which means the infield will be improved. The catching is the same as last year. It was the best in Dixie. And the smartest.

AS TO PITCHING.

We lost a couple of lads in Bud Thomas, the Virginia dirt farmer, and Al Williams, the tall tower from Texas, who won a total of 35 ball games.

Bill Beckman comes along from the salt mines at Knoxville. He won 16 ball games up there. He should win 20 for our nine. And Johnny Michaels, the only southpaw we've had in two years, is expected to win at least 15. This Lou Garland, whose arm was supposed to be dubious because of an operation, may come along with some victories. Durham is back. He can throw that ball.

The pitching outlook isn't bad at all. But until it has proved itself, we can't be sure.

But, as aforesaid, we aren't looking for anything. And that is a help.

The Cracker pitching last year wasn't so good as generally believed. We went along with pitchers overworked all year because of injuries and the failure of Bill Schmidt to round into form.

In 1935 and 1936 our nine reached the play-offs with pitchers worn to a whisper. Their curve balls had not many more wrinkles than a freshly pressed suit. If we can have just good, average pitchers this year, all of whom can stay in there and take their turns, we'll win that third flag.

And that's something no team in Dixie has ever done. There's that jinx riding with us this year.

BARTOW'S PRIDE.

Rudy York, the pride of Bartow county, is being worked at third base. Latest reports from Mickey Cochrane had him saying:

"The boy has the makings of a third baseman. If he can just get into his head the idea he can play there, he'll be all right. There is no doubt about his hitting."

And there isn't. The big fellow can really punish that baseball. It's a bit tough trying to break into the Detroit lineup as a first baseman with big Hank Greenberg back again and in shape.

JO JO WHITE.

Jo Jo White, "The Tigah Man" from College Park, is rather sure to stick at center field for the Tigers.

Just the other day, Harry Salsinger, the brilliant gentleman who heads the Detroit News sports department, commented on Jo Jo White's performance. White had just made a brilliant running catch.

"There," said Cochrane, "is the best center fielder in the American league. If he would only quit trying to slug the ball, he would be a good hitter. We'll see what we can do."

With Greenberg back at first and with "The Tigah Man" in center field, the Tigers will look a lot like the club that won two pennants. And one World Series.

They'll look a lot more so if Mickey Cochrane can get back there behind that plate and catch about 90 ball games. Or even more.

Henry Armstrong Thrashes Spoldi

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles negro featherweight, stepped out of his class tonight to thrash Aldo Spoldi, Italian lightweight, in the 10-round feature match at Madison Square Garden. Armstrong, scaling 126 1/2 to his rival's 135, scored his second victory in as many weeks in the Garden ring.

Only Spoldi's ruggedness, courage and defensive tactics under continued fire from the first to last round, saved the Italian from being flattened.

Torrance's Manager Called for Hearing

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission today subpoenaed Herb Brodie, manager of Jack Torrance, to appear before the commission next Wednesday in connection with an investigation into the Torrance-Jack Phillips fiasco at Baton Rouge last month.

Phillips, declaring he had been instructed to take a "dive," ran out of the Torrance bout. The Louisiana boxing authorities, after investigating, fined and suspended Brodie, Torrance and Mushy Jackson, of Chicago.

The New York commission told Brodie today it would subpoena Torrance tomorrow and instruct Jackson, head of the 20th Century Club, to appear Wednesday's meeting.

RICHARDS HITS 3 OUT OF PARK AND MAILHO 2

Alex Hooks Signs His Contract After Confab With Mann.

By Jack Troy.

PANAMA CITY, Fla., March 19.—

A definite promise of power on attack was revealed in the first batting practice of the champion Crackers today.

The pitchers were not curving them, but, on the other hand, they were coming in there with plenty of speed.

And there was some very hefty counting. Paul Richards, who'll hit in the cleanup position this summer, pounded three pitches over the left field fence which is 351 feet from home plate.

Smil Mailho parked a couple over the right field fence which is 310 feet from the plate. And big Joe Hutcherson saluted a fast ball with a drive which went far into the great beyond.

Marshall Mauldin started right out rattling the fences and smashing those line drives over third and in the hole between short and third.

Hooks, Luby, Hill, McQuail, Chatham, Galvin and others were laying plenty of wood on the horsehide.

It may be a mistake to think that this Cracker club which is going to have more speed than any club of recent years will be questionable on attack.

That is to say, that it will not have the power on attack of the last two pennant winners.

MOORE HAS HOPES.

Manager Eddie Moore is inclined to believe that this club may eventually prove to be a heavier hitting outfit than either of the other two he has managed to the Southern league pennant.

Moore figures that Richards easily will hit as well as he did last year. He's counting on Mauldin to hit well over .300. Hill should have a better year with the stick, as should Hooks.

He is sure Mailho will hit as well and expects the other outfielder—Hutcherson, McQuail, Pittman or Dewese, to show a good average. Then, too, he is looking for Luby to hit at least .300.

Galvin is no weak sister with the stick and the attack should be as strong with him behind the bat.

Increased speed is going to make it vastly more effective on defense.

Jim Galvin, the finest B catcher in the league, asked Manager Moore to let him go behind the plate in the first batting practice.

Usually, the rookies handle the under-fire catching in the early days. But Galvin, who is strong as an ox, reported in good shape and said he couldn't see any reason for waiting.

Moore consented and Galvin did the catching for the first 20 minutes of the hitting drill.

ALL PITCHERS WORK.

All the pitchers worked five minutes each.

They worked in this order: Dolenc, Simmons, Cook, Beckman, Garland, Durham, Leonard, Michaels, Lindsey, Harris and Robinson.

Here's how the batting order lined up: Mauldin, Mailho, Hooks, Richards, Hutcherson, McQuail, Luby, Galvin, Hill, Chatham and Pittman. They each hit three and bunted one.

A rookie list followed and then the first-named group batted some more. The players were allowed to hit for more than an hour.

Leonard looked good. He was loose and really felt like pitching. He said afterwards that he would like to take anything for having undergone that appendix operation. It has done worlds for him in a physical sense.

The infield worked out for a short time following the batting drill. The infield Atlanta fans will see when the club returns home in early April. It was their first drill together.

Hooks, who was expected to quickly come to terms with President Earl Mann this morning and signed his contract later in the day, was stationed at first, with Luby on second, Chatham at short and Hill on third.

HOOKS SATISFIED.

Hooks, the last player to sign, was satisfied with terms. And he really went to work around the initial sack.

Luby and Chatham practiced on their doubleplay teamwork and left nothing to be desired on the basis of early season performance.

Both like a pair of rabbits out there. Hill, who came here minus fat, handled his job very well indeed. While Luby did not cut loose with his throwing arm, he threw hard enough to show that even in this department he will not take a back seat to the departed Nig Lipscomb. Luby really can throw.

It was the first workout for the full squad of 40 players and was the best of the camp. For more than two hours the two-score athletes kept on the move.

The infield work will be lengthened as the days go on. The other work will move on apace. Moore is getting restless and all is well with the world.

Hutcherson Denies Catching Report.

PANAMA CITY, March 19.—(AP)—Big Joe Hutcherson said today that he might have to go to catching next season, but for the present he would stick to chasing balls in the outfield.

"I don't know how the report got behind the bat this season," Joe said. "I did mention something in Memphis about the fact that I used to catch in high school and in semi-pro ball, but I certainly didn't say I was thinking of changing a finger glove for a mitt. At least not this year, anyway."

He is battling for right field in opposition to three fine rookies, McQuail, Pittman and Dewese.

PARKER WINS TITLE.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 19.—(AP)—Frankie Parker, who pushed ahead of Elmer Grant in the No. 2 spot in the United States tennis rankings, today succeeded the "mighty mite" from Atlanta as Bermuda men's tennis champion.

Parker routed Robert Murray, of Montreal, former Canadian Davis cup player, 6-1, 6-0, 6-2, in the final.

He suggested that a league should be formed of the University of Richmond, the College of William and Mary, Hampden Sydney and Randolph Macon.

He pitched and won his first game, 4 to 3.

But it took a fight to bring Dean forcefully into the spotlight and start him on the hectic career he has since followed.

In the middle of the 1930 season he was sent back to Houston where he took part in 14 games, winning eight and losing two. He spent the 1931 season there, too, winning 26 and losing 10 games.

Dixie became a Cardinal regular in 1932 and has been the mainstay of the hurling staff since.

It's Marshall Mauldin---Doing His Famous Head-First Slide at Panama City

Marshall Mauldin, new Cracker outfielder, who as a member of the Knoxville Smokies last year won considerable favor for his daring base running, including head-first slides into all bases, is up to his old tricks rather early. Above he is shown as he slid into second base at the Cracker training quarters in Panama City. Hugh Luby, new keystone from the Western league, has taken the catcher's throw and is there to make the play—but a bit late for the reckless Mauldin boy. Mauldin was the only player in the league last year who went into first head-first.

Dizzy Campaign Ends With Dix Dean Signing

Hurler at First Balks at "Good Behavior" Clause in Contract, in Stormy Session.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Dixie Dean signed his 1937 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals tonight after a stormy session with the management.

The ace pitcher, who will receive a reported $25,000 for his services, first balked on a "good behavior" provision.

He walked out after a conference with Sam Braddon, club president, and said "It's all off." Later he went back to talk with Braddon and signed.

Braddon said he had "exactod no promises and made no conditions. He signed a straight baseball contract."

Dean, who insisted all winter he would not play this year for less than $50,000, said he was satisfied with the terms.

The pitcher talked to Braddon last night by long-distance telephone from his home at Bradenton. Both said they had reached an agreement and Dixie drove here today.

Two conferences followed. Dean said Braddon wanted him to promise to mind his own business, to refrain from heckling his teammates and to obey manager Frankie Frisch's orders without questioning the latter's authority.

Ole Dix' said he asked Braddon why he wanted such a promise.

"But I always have done what Frankie told me to do," Dean declared. "I always have given the team everything I had and I haven't heckled the players."

Dean's entire professional baseball career has been under the Cardinal banner.

Scout Don Curtis of Houston, a Cardinal farm, signed the gaudy, nearly 19-year-old San Antonio, Texas, boy in the fall of 1929. Dean reported to the Houston training camp in the spring of 1930 and received only cursory attention until one day Catcher Abbott told Branch Rickey, general manager, that Dean had "a lot of stuff."

Rickey remained calm and after the training season shipped Dean to St. Joseph, Mo., of the Western league. There he pitched and won his first game, 4 to 3.

But it took a fight to bring Dean forcefully into the spotlight and start him on the hectic career he has since followed.

Shields and Dean mixed over what is not definitely known and over night Dean became famous in St. Louis.

In the middle of the 1930 season he was sent back to Houston where he took part in 14 games, winning eight and losing two. He spent the 1931 season there, too, winning 26 and losing 10 games.

Dixie became a Cardinal regular in 1932 and has been the mainstay of the hurling staff since.

Salary bickering with Rickey and President Sam Braddon, of the Cardinals, have been annual occurrences. The day after the 1936 season closed Dean announced he was the No. 1 holdout of the 1937 season and "No matter what they have on their contract, I'm not satisfied."

He held out more weeks at the start of the 1936 season, finally signing for a reported salary of $24,000 for the season after demanding $40,000.

Among his many eccentric acts was his getting into debt to the Cardinals for $400 more than his season's salary, before the 1932 season actually got under way.

Dean is 26 years old.

ROYAL MAIL 1ST IN AINTREE RACE

Half Million See Only Seven Horses of 33 Starters Survive Test.

By Gayle Talbot.

AINTREE, Eng., March 19.—(AP) Leaping Aintree's forbidding fences and brooke like a stag and running light-footed on the sodden flat, Hugh Lloyd Thomas' Royal Mail, a handsome black gelding, today won the 90th running of the Grand National Steeplechase.

A crowd estimated at a half-million, including the King and Queen, saw the four-and-a-half-mile course take a terrific toll of the 33 starters including six American-owned horses and Dorothy Page's Golden Miller, 8-to-1 favorite. Only seven survived the 30 treacherous fences.

Never farther back than fourth, Royal Mail was earmarked as the winner from the time he stepped confidently into the lead, shortly after completing the first circuit.

Although no mares have won the classic in several generations it remained for one of them—Jimmy Rank's Coolen—to give Royal Mail the only competition he had—except from the doggedly persistent riderless runner, Drim—in the last half-mile.

COOLEN WAS RIGHT AT ROYAL MAIL's flank at the final jump but she could not stand the pressure in the closing drive and finished three lengths back.

Another lady of the turf E. W. W. Bailey's Pucka Belle, was third 10 lengths back of Coolen. Then came Sir David Llewellyn's Ego, favorite until supplanted by the Miller a few hours before the race. R. Strutt's Crown Prince, A. Pilkington's Pen-craig and S. Wilkinson's Don Brad-man, the latter fell at the first jump but was remounted and finished a quarter-mile back of the leaders.

In winning the purse of $50,250 in slow time to 9-59.8, Royal Mail not only paid his backers—and they were legion until he ran two bad races a few weeks ago—100 to 6 but kept the grand national "in the family," he's a half-brother of Reynoldstown, winner the last two years. Both were sired by My Prince, an Irish Stallion.

Coolen was a rank outsider at 28 to 1 while Pucka Belle was well backed at 100 to 6.

RACE DISAPPOINTMENTS.

From an American viewpoint the race was most disappointing. Not since failed to finish but one of them, Frank Gould's American-bred What Have You, was left at the post.

What Have You first tried to break away from his rider, Bill Street, of Warren, Va., and return to his stable. He then refused to leave the post with the remainder of the field. Finally with two stablehands beating him with their bats, Street got his mount under way after the field was 100 yards away. What Have You tumbled at the first hedge, injuring his leg slightly.

"I can't figure what got into him," said Street, who was riding in his first grand national.

Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Flying Minutes, a son of the 1926 Kentucky Derby winner, Flying Ebony, and just about the least liked of the Americans, made the best showing. With his 16-year-old American born jockey, Bobby Hobbs, Flying Minutes looked like

Those Glasses Looked Familiar to Mauldin

Cracker Outfielder Once Paid for His Forgetfulness While Playing With Longview.

By Jack Troy.

PANAMA CITY, Fla., March 19.—Small incidents often change the entire course of a career.

For instance, Marshall Mauldin had ambitions of becoming a wrestler until one night an opponent bit a chunk out of his leg in Atlanta.

Marshall had started wrestling with his brother, Gentleman John. They sort of had ambitions to form a brother team. And all was going well until Marshall was bit.

There's an old saying that once stung, twice shy. And that's the way Marshall felt about that. He didn't lack courage or anything like that. He simply decided there were saner ways of making a living.

So he concentrated on baseball. As an infielder.

And he played the infield until 1935 when Dallas sent him to Longview, and Manager Tex Jones converted him into an outfielder. Marshall was named the all-star center fielder after the season.

Tex Jones cured Marshall, as well as other members of the team, of forgetfulness. Marshall tells the story on himself. It's quite a story and certainly offers a lesson not easily forgotten.

LISTEN, YOU'RE GUYS!

Finally, Tex got fed up with the business. He told the players that the next time one of them left anything behind, he would fine them two bucks.

Now, two bucks in the bus league is important money and there was much less absentmindedness in evidence.

Until one day Marshall forgot his sun glasses.

Thinking of the fine and all, he was a bit reluctant to mention it to Jeanes. Before the game, however, he had to confess. The sun field was too bright to play without glasses.

Jeanes told Marshall to see if he couldn't borrow a pair. And it so happened a kid came strolling in the park with what looked like a likely pair.

SEEKS A TRADE.

So Marshall tried to strike a bargain. He was short of funds and asked the youngster to loan them to him. "Can't," said the boy. "I'm going to leave before the game's over. 'Sell 'em to you for $3.'"

That stumped Marshall. He didn't have more than 3 cents with him. So he appealed to the club secretary, who let him have the money.

When Marshall became the possessor of funds again, he went up to Jeanes and handed him the three dollars.

"Marshall," said Tex. "I want this to be a lesson to you. I picked up your glasses and brought them along. I gave them to the kid and told him to let you see them."

"He sold you your own glasses." "I'll declare," said Mauldin. "I knew there was something familiar about that pair of glasses."

PANAMA CITY, Fla., March 19. Hughes Spalding, Cracker director, arrived here today and will watch the club conclude the first week of spring practice tomorrow.

Mrs. Spalding, daughter, Eleanor, and son, Phineas, accompanied Mr. Spalding here. Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Beasley, of Atlanta, were in the party.

Metz in Hospital After Auto Wreck

TAMPA, Fla., March 19.—(AP) Dick Metz, pro golfer, injured in an automobile accident near Safety Harbor Tuesday night, is recuperating in a hospital here and hopes to be ready to continue his tour Monday.

Metz was driving Gene Sarazen's car between Belleair and Safety Harbor when the accident occurred. He was traveling alone. The car hit a telephone pole, and Metz was knocked unconscious.

Two hours later, when Metz regained consciousness, he managed to get to a house near Safety Harbor, and phoned for an ambulance.

An ankle bone was chipped, but Metz said today he believed he would be ready to leave the hospital Monday.

Barons Claim To Have Best Hurlers in Loop

CASEY, CY MOORE EXPECTED TO ADD OLD HOSS' STAFF

Stephenson Also Has Right to Count on Better Hitting Team.

By Bob Phillips.
(The Birmingham Post-Herald.)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 19.—(AP)—Riggs Stephenson may be pardoned if he appears to be in good humor as he prepares for his second season as a manager.

For the team he took last year in his managerial novitiate and led through all sorts of adversity to third place and then a Shaggyish title is almost intact. Gone of importance are only Clyde Shoun, left-hander, and Joe Palmisano, catcher.

Shoun with all his excellence was only the third man in the stellar Birmingham triumvirate of south-pawers. He was 15 and 11, which compares with 17 and eight for Jay Joiner and 21 and 7 for George Darow. Palmisano was counted upon right up to his retirement two weeks ago and his absence may weaken the catching—noticably.

Until he proves unequal to the job, however, Hal Sueme will hold the No. 1 backup post. That is, as soon as he is returned here by Chicago. Sueme did more catching than Palmisano last year near the close. To help him there is to be Milton McDougal, up from Gainesville of the Florida State.

Since both Sueme and McDougal are non-class men, Palmisano's loss will be compensated for in part by the opportunity to use another class man elsewhere, perhaps on the mound.

Birmingham's new strength is expected to be in the right-handed pitching department, which has been built up, it is felt, by the addition of Cy Moore, from Little Rock, and Hugh Casey, from Los Angeles. Neither won half his games last year but both are figured capable of coming through here. If Casey's arm injury of early 1936 is really a thing of the past, he, Moore, Joiner and Darow should give the Barons the top staff of the league. This is not to overlook right-handers Arthur Jones and Bobby Coombs, neither of whom did well last year but one of whom is due to stick again.

Stephenson reasonably can hope for better batting years from such men as Luce, Trapp and Sanfey. Luce hit .289 as a rank rookie who was slowed up by injury. Trapp's .272 is much below his normal Class A-1 company pace, any experienced over-server will agree. And Sanford's changed batting style had him hitting around .200 the last half of the race after a miserable start.

Bartlesville, Denver Reach Final Round

DENVER, March 19.—(AP)—Weathering a stern second-half rally, the Bartlesville (Okla.) Oilers defeated the Kansas City Trails, 43 to 35, tonight to advance to the final round of the national A. A. U. basketball tournament. The Denver Sawfords defeated Hollywood Stars, 49-32, in this match semi-final game.

Scouting their first crack at a national title, Denver scored a far more decisive triumph than the Oilers. The Oilers and Sawfords clash for the title tomorrow night.

Brown, Shikat Wrestle Draw In 90 Minutes

By Thad Holt.

Dick Shikat, a wrestler of the old school, slick and smooth and poised like the master of any sport, last night had need of all his great skill and knowledge to earn a 90-minute draw with Orville Brown, one of the modern stars, in a first-rate match at the Atlanta theater.

Shikat was as good last night as ever he has been. He admitted as much. The German, who twice has held the world's heavy weight title, who has beaten all the leading warriors of the present and immediate past except Joe Stecher and John Pesek, whom he never met, earned his money last night.

Brown could not match the effortless Philadelphia in science, although he is no novice, as Everett Marshall, the champion, discovered in a 90-minute bout here last week. But Orville had the same thing he had against Marshall, who now lies injured in a Kansas City hospital. He had youth and the strength of a mule and he wouldn't quit.

A REVELATION. After watching some of the stumblers who earn their living posing as wrestlers, it is a revelation to see a match like the one last night.

Shikat's balance, the way he moves, almost as if he were a machine; the manner in which he slips out of holds he has no notion, as Everett Marshall, the champion, discovered in a 90-minute bout here last week. But Orville had the same thing he had against Marshall, who now lies injured in a Kansas City hospital. He had youth and the strength of a mule and he wouldn't quit.

Well, back to the story of the match which a fine crowd that braved a bad night seemed to know was the last word in mat entertainment. It took Shikat 50 tough minutes to win the first fall. Orville cleverly executed his invincible Indian in 13 minutes and they went the remaining distance carefully, but most interestingly, Shikat was particularly effective with his front head lock, which he used incessantly.

FRANK BROWN WINS. Frank Brown won on a foul from Tiny Hewitt, replacing Lou Plummer, injured in St. Louis last night. The match went three falls and Brown showed considerable improvement over his last match here, although he still isn't good enough to carry his big brother's wrestling title.

Roy Graham, of Philadelphia, who would like to be a villain like Dick Brown, who has been in the ring for a long time, and who is extremely boring with it all, was disqualified for something or other in the opening of recent weeks. In other cities the officers of the law allow the final was good enough to make up for a dozen bouts like that one.

This correspondent also found relief in the absence of policemen in the ring, having decided the men in blue were trying to do a little show stealing or date-stuffing, although the referee, Jimmie Parker, was not one of them.

PETREL NINES SLATE FIRST 'GAME' TODAY

Open Fight Seen for All Berths Except Third Base.

Oglethorpe's varsity baseball team will play its first intra-club game today if weather conditions are favorable. Handicapped by cold and rainy weather the team hasn't had enough good practice sessions to get the team into shape.

In a short talk to his team this week Coach Anderson presented the facts as they were by saying, "In less than two weeks our season will be upon us and we are equipped at present with a fair pitching staff, a complete new outfield, a ragged infield, and a woeful lack of hitting. It is up to you new men to hustle and earn the right to play your respective positions and retain Oglethorpe's reputation as a baseball school."

Unless some of the freshmen recruits show up better Hugh Clements will have to play the iron-man role by pitching one day and playing the infield the next. Sam Clinkscales and Buck Thomas are looking good at the plate and may earn an infield berth by the starting date.

JUSTICES ARE SILENT ON PLANS TO REVISE HIGHEST U. S. COURT

Senate Body Hears Law Schools Witnesses Ask Passage of Proposal.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Justices of the supreme court declined today an invitation to give the senate judiciary committee their opinions of the Roosevelt court reorganization proposal.

Leading members of the opposition group in the senate, eager to obtain testimony from the justices, had extended the informal invitation. They reported with disappointment that the justices prefer to keep aloof from the current controversy.

This disclosure was made at the end of a day, in which the committee went ahead with a list of witnesses from the law schools and universities favoring the bill.

Passage Urged.
Dr. Charles Haines, of the University of California, at Los Angeles, urged passage of the measure "to remove some of the shackles which the justices have forged to obstruct and confine governmental authority," and to end what he said was the "court's present role of censor over the policy and expediency of legislative action."

William D. Lewis, former dean of the Pennsylvania University law school and now connected with the American Law Institute, asserted that "under the court as it is now constituted there are few acts of congress regarded by the majority in congress and by the President as not only constitutional, but vitally necessary to public welfare, which will not be annulled by the decision of a divided court."

At the outset of the senate's session, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, announced that John H. Clarke, the only living former member of the supreme court, would make a radio speech on the court bill next Monday night. Clarke was retired from the bench in 1922 and is now living in California, will speak at

Woman, 100, Plans Another 25 Years

WINCHESTER, Ky., March 19.—(AP)—One hundred years old today, Mrs. Agatha Eton Boone said: "I'm as spry as I was 30 years ago. I've with my cap for 125. I'm Mrs. Boone, who died at 93 in 1925. She was born at Kiddyville, near here.

8 p. m., Atlanta time, Monday over NBC.

Favors Measure.
While Robinson did not say how Clarke regarded the measure it was assumed from the fact that the announcement came from the administration leadership that the ex-justice favors the bill. Robinson recalled that Justice McReynolds recently expressed his views at a fraternal dinner and that his remarks "were given wide publicity."

Also in the senate, Copeland, of New York, asserted President Roosevelt gave a "false impression" in a recent speech by suggesting that the courts had "interfered" with the control of floods on the Ohio river and its tributaries.

COURT REVISION PLAN SUPPORTED BY EARLE

Pennsylvania Governor Addresses Joint Session of Georgia Assembly.

Half the people of America will be working to take care of the other half in five years unless a permanent recovery program is established, Governor George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania, declared here yesterday in an address before a joint session of the general assembly.

Governor Earle said he felt a downward revision of the hours of labor, accompanied by an upward revision in the scale of wages, coupled with a reciprocal tariff and a huge public works program would solve the problem.

The Pennsylvania chief executive is a former Republican who joined the Democratic party in the campaign of 1932. He served as minister to Austria in the early days of the Roosevelt administration and under his leadership has turned Pennsylvania from a rock-ribbed Republican to a Democratic state.

"I would like to compliment you members of the Georgia senate on your unanimous approval of the President's court plan and the people of the state on their indicated endorsement of it," Earle said.

"I see where the score in one country was 10 to 1 and in another it was 7 to 1. It takes a good team to run up scores like that."

"In Pennsylvania we feel about the President just as you do."

"Franklin Roosevelt has shown us that once this reactionary judicial barrier is removed we will have a bright open highway to social security, economic justice and industrial recovery."

Governor Earle came to Atlanta from Savannah where he has been visiting several days. He was escorted to the capital by Andrew A. Smith, of Savannah, Governor Rivers' naval aide. Also accompanying the chief executive was Secretary of State David T. Lawrence, of Pennsylvania.

Following the joint session Governor Rivers entertained at a luncheon to Governor Earle at which state officials, officials of the house and senate, Frank Neely, Major Clark Howell and State Chairman Charles S. Reid were guests.

Swallows Arrive At Mission on Time

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Cal., March 19.—(AP)—With a 161-year-old tradition hanging in the balance, the swallows of San Juan Capistrano made good again today.

Legend has it that these swallows, probably the most traveled of all feathered creatures, arrive at the mission promptly on March 19 (St. Joseph's Day) and depart just as promptly on October 23 (San Juan Day). The legend also holds that the swallows drive out the swifts (quite similar, to all outward appearances) from the mud nests of the mission.
